Willkie Swings Into Northern Ohio

DECLARES AXIS VIEWS U. S. IN TERMS OF WAR

Charges America Has Little Influence in World Affairs; In Cleveland Tonight.

By The Associated Press

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN ENROUTE CLEVELAND, Oct. 2—Wendell L. Willkie, declaring that this country now has little influence in international affairs, said today that Germany, Japan and Italy "are thinking about the United States in terms of war."

"Nobody in this country wants war," said the Republican presidential nominee to a trainside crowd at Adrian, Mich.

As Willkie expanded his views on U. S. foreign policy his special train traveled into Ohio for a tour through the northern part of the state which is to reach its climax with a major campaign address at Cleveland tonight. During the trip this afternoon the Willkie train was scheduled to stop at Toledo, Oak Harbor, Sandusky and Elyria before reaching Cleveland.

"Under such circumstances there is just one hope for the continuation of this peaceful democratic life—and that is for the United States to become strong," the G O P candidate continued.

"It must become strong in its domestic economy and in its military defense. We need both. In both respects we are presently very weak.

"This administration now in power has spent sixty billion dollars of our money. It has left 9,000,000 men unemployed. Agricultural prices are depressed.

"Yet it has still failed to build us an adequate national defense. In 1929 when there was no Hitler, 21 per cent of the federal expenditures were for national defense, yet in 1936 only 9 per cent were spent for that purpose.

"We have only 75,000 men equipped for service able to fight. Yet this administration says 'you can't change horses in the middle of the stream.' I say to you that the administration which got us into the middle of the stream is not an administration which can get us out of that stream."

Drives To Toledo

Entering Ohio Willkie left his train at Sylvania to drive into Toledo. Crowds along the route at some spots cheered him, but in some factory districts boos were heard.

In front of the Electric Auto-Lite company a tomato was thrown near Willkie's car. At the Spicer Manufacturing company, many men in the crowd carried pictures of President Roosevelt and one held a sign saying "Roosevelt Forever."

In the Toledo business district Willkie received a noisy greeting from the crowds lining the streets. His car was in the center of a shower of ticket tape and serpentines.

Speaking in Toledo's courthouse square Willkie was introduced by Gov. John W. Bricker. Facing a statue of former President McKinley Willkie told his audience that if there were "anybody who is going to vote for me this fall I want them to vote for John Bricker for governor."

He also urged the election of Harold Burton, Republican candidate for senator, and for Republican representatives, saying that "thoughtful Americans are disturbed over present conditions."

The Republican presidential nominee referred to the recent pact between Germany, Japan and Italy.

Willkie reiterated that the three countries have "a warlike attitude toward the United States," and added "here today we are not sure what agreements the President of the United States has en-

Large Crowd Hears Bricker, Burton at Republican Rally

Candidate for Senate Calls for Voters' Support of Willkie; Bricker Reviews Record.

By JACK ELLIOTT

A jam-packed audience of some 2,000 filled The Star auditorium last night to hear Governor Bricker and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland bid for Marion county's support for themselves and the entire Republican ticket in the November election.

Both Governor Bricker, seeking his second term, and Mayor Burton, candidate for the U S senate, tossed hard punches at the New Deal and gave their backing to Wendell L. Willkie against a third term for President Roosevelt.

The governor, devoting much of his time to a review of his administration's accomplishments, brought with him figures to show what his two years in office have meant to Marion county in dollars and cents.

Mayor Burton gave almost undivided attention to the national campaign, driving home point after point against another four years for President Roosevelt.

The speakers' platform was filled with state, district and county candidates and party leaders, all introduced to the audience by French Crow, Marion county G O P chairman.

Mayor Burton and Mrs Burton stayed at Hotel Harding overnight while Governor Bricker drove back to Columbus to attend to preparations for the draft registration. Both men were to join the Willkie train at Toledo this morning.

Prior to the rally, the Harding High school band played a concert uptown, part of the time in front of the auditorium. Music for the rally was furnished by the Republican glee club, directed by Mrs Lucille M Anderson, candidate for county recorder.

Carter M Patton, Marion attorney, introduced the speakers.

Tribute to Marion

Mayor Burton was first before the microphone starting out with a tribute to Marion and its people, including favorable mention of Congressman Frederick C Smith.

He referred to Marion as a "citadel of Republicanism," and declared "it is an inspiration to come here where your fellow-townsman made his record in the hearts of his countrymen—first in the senate and then in the presidency."

Later Gov Bricker referred to the same man as "the beloved Warren G Harding."

Before going into more serious matters, Mayor Burton apologized for not being able to bring about an "all-Ohio World Series," referring to the recent downfall of the Cleveland Indians.

Disposing of the baseball situation, he opened up on the Washington scene.

He reminded the audience how Republicans had warned long and loud in 1936 what would happen if Roosevelt were reelected and said that even worse things came to pass than they predicted.

Hits Growing Power

Mayor Burton said he is alarmed at President Roosevelt's ever-increasing executive powers and his emergencies.

"None of these powers have been returned (to congress) and none of these emergencies have come to an end" he charged. "We must put a stop to it before it is too late."

The third term issue, he declared, is the one issue and it includes all others.

He listed as one of the dangers of having one man in the presidency for 12 years the possibility that "a man can build up a clique or a following to follow him—right or wrong."

"That's not America," he shouted.

He pointed out that Roosevelt has appointed five of the nine supreme court members and that another term might make it a unanimous Roosevelt court.

"What does it do to the man?" he asked of the third term.

"Some people say he might go on and have three or four or five terms. But I don't believe that. I don't think any man could stand it that long."

Huge Physical Task

Mayor Burton cited the tremendous task of the presidency and declared a third term carries with it the danger of physical collapse.

The president, he said, "needs good health, the foundation of cool, calm and patient judgment."

He compared the two party conventions and said "the President never gave his party a chance to pick any one else."

Behind the Willkie campaign, Mayor Burton said, is "a genuine pull and push" — and behind Roosevelt's there's a "drag."

He cited his opposition to great executive power, to increased federal debt and to increased federal payrolls.

Willkie, he said, can lead the way to national defense and give America speed—"uncompromising speed of production."

Urging support for the entire ticket, he described the Republican party both as "the party of the people" and the "anti third term party."

Bricker Hits Bureaucracy

Governor Bricker began his talk by assailing the bureaucracy in Washington, going into considerable detail concerning the withholding of old age pension funds from Ohio by the national government.

He declared as long as he is governor, he'll keep up the fight for the $1,300,000 which is still withheld.

The state administration's record in old age pensions was reviewed. Pensioners have been increased by the thousands he said, almost 100 added in Marion county. Total pension payments in the county this year will total $330,-

WAVES OF NAZI PLANES TURNED BACK BY RAF

London Reports Four Assaults on Capital Repulsed by Defending Craft.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 2—The air ministry announced tonight that reports "so far received" showed nine German planes shot down during the day and one British fighter plane missing.

By The Associated Press

Four swift-striking waves of German warplanes attempted to bomb London today, but British RAF Spitfires chased one formation down the Thames river and the air ministry reported all the attackers were intercepted and scattered.

With clear flying weather, Berlin said the aerial assault would be greatly intensified during the day.

The air ministry listed eight Nazi planes shot down from mid*night to noon without the loss of* a single RAF defense fighter.

As the war passed its thirteenth month—with the danger of a Nazi invasion of England apparently becoming more and more remote—London military circles said there was "no reason to doubt" that Hitler's high command has taken over direction of Italian operations in north Africa, aimed at breaking Great Britain's hold on the Mediterranean.

These circles said also that in all probability German troops had moved into Italy to be used as reinforcements for the Italian north African army.

Egypt appeared to be the next major land battlefield, they said, with Nazi-Fascist legions joining in an attempt to crush British resistance by spring and then turning to the "final assault" on Britain's island kingdom itself.

Invasion Weather Poor

"Invasion weather" today was poor. High seas were reported running in the strait of Dover, lashed by a cold northwest wind.

British and German bombers spread wide destruction in their night patrols, and more and more it was becoming evident that Germany—which suffered little material havoc in the 1914-18 World war—has now begun to feel the lash.

Thus, the London air ministry reported huge-scale raids by RAF bombers pressing a new autumn counter-offensive.

Services Tonight Arranged To Open Jewish New Year

Celebration of Rosh Ha-shono, the Jewish religious New Year, by members of the Marion Congregation of Israel, will start tonight.

In keeping with an annual custom stores of the city operated by persons of the Jewish faith will be closed Thursday, New Year's day.

The public will be welcomed at the services tonight at 8 and Thursday at 10 a m in the Congregation quarters on West Center street above the W T Grant Co store.

Rabbi Nathan Stern of New York City wrote the sermon, "Destinies of Splendor," which will be read tonight. The Thursday morning sermon, "Victory Through Faith," was written by Rabbi Max C. Currick of Erie, Pa. The sermons will be read by George G Kleinmaier, a member of the Congregation.

The service tonight will be on the eve of the first day of Tishri, the seventh month in the Jewish calendar. The two-day celebration by Orthodox and Conservative Jews is carried over from the time when uncertain calendar calculations made necessary the two-day observance.

Unconnected with nature or with any specific historic event, Rosh Ha-shono was first observed in its present form within two generations of the fall of the second Temple. The only holiday at this season which is mentioned in the Bible is the feast of ingathering at the end of the year.

Since Rosh Ha-shono was traditionally the day on which the Lord judged each man and determined his future, greetings exchanged on the New Year are often expressed in the wish: "May you be inscribed (in the book of life) for a good year."

25 LISTED FOR DRAFT BOARDS

County Recommending Committee Has Virtually Completed Selections.

Marion county's three-man recommending committee is moving swiftly toward completion of its task of setting up machinery for the military draft.

Already 25 of the 27 men to be nominated by the committee have been selected and are being notified today by Common Pleas Court Bailiff Robert A Kelly. The remaining men will be selected tomorrow.

Common Pleas Judge Hector S Young, chairman of the recommending committee, which also includes Probate Judge Oscar Gast and James C Woods, business manager of The Star, has called a meeting tomorrow night at 8 in the common pleas courtroom for all the 27 nominees.

The committee then will hear requests for exemption from service as draft officials if there are any. The requests will have to be backed up by urgent reasons, committee members warned, indicating that nomination for draft service almost amounts to an order. There is no pay either for the recommending committee or for any of the men they select as draft officials.

Gov. Bricker has asked that the county recommending committees throughout Ohio have their selections in his hands by tomorrow, but this will be impossible for the Marion county committee. It is expected the names will be submitted to the governor Friday.

List of Selections

Persons selected by the committee include 15 men to compose three five-man draft boards for the county, nine men on three registrants' advisory boards of three men each, and three men who will serve as government appeals agents. All have been selected except *two men for two of the five-*man draft boards.

The county is divided into three draft districts, each of which will have a draft board, registrants' advisory board and appeals agent. The districts are Wards 1, 2 and 3, Wards 4, 5 and 6, and the remaining rural area of the county.

Mr Davis for the last six years has been employed as a clerk at the state liquor store here. He took a civil service examination for fireman a year ago last August and was one of three men whose names were certified to Mr. Caldwell by the civil service commission for appointment a few weeks ago.

Mr Davis is married and has two children.

FRANK SEITER THROWN FROM WAGON, KILLED

Fatal Accident Occurs as Victim Works in Corn Field with Son.

Frank Wilhelm Seiter, 62, lifelong resident of Marion county, died almost instantly of a broken neck when he was thrown from a farm wagon by a runaway team of horses about 3 p m yesterday at his farm seven miles northwest of Marion on the Brush Ridge road.

He was pronounced dead at City hospital. County officials who investigated the accident said today they believe he died just as the W C Boyd ambulance arrived to take him to the hospital.

Mr Seiter and a son Floyd, who lives at home, were working yesterday afternoon in a cornfield, hauling corn from a picker. The son was operating a tractor pulling the picker. Mr. Seiter was alone on the empty wagon, coming across the field toward the picker when the accident occurred.

Road Worker Leads Hunt

Roy Wewester of south of Marion, an employe of the county engineering department, who was operating a road scraper along the road, told officials he saw Mr Seiter on the wagon and that when he looked at the field again the horses were running and Mr. Seiter was not on the wagon.

Mr. Wewester stopped the road scraper and ran into the field calling to the son. They started to look for Mr. Seiter and found him, unconscious, a short distance from the spot where Mr. Wewester had first seen the team running. He did not regain consciousness. The runaway team soon came to a stop in the field.

Although no one was nearby when the horses broke away, Walter D Moore, assistant Marion county prosecuting attorney, said it is possible that in going over the rough ground the wagon moved up on the horses and scared them, causing them to run. The wagon had no tongue and the horses were hitched to it with a chain, Mr Moore said. Deputy Sheriff Marion Hinklin was among those who accompanied Mr Moore to the scene of the accident.

Coroner M F Atxhelm of Caledonia who is away from home, is expected to make his investigation and return a verdict upon his return some time today or Thursday.

Mr Seiter was born in Big Island township on March 14, 1878 and spent all his life on a farm. His parents were the late Christian and Elizabeth Almendinger Seiter. He was married to Miss Nettie Miller on Oct 1, 1904, his death occurring on their thirty-sixth wedding anniversary.

He was a member of the Salem Church of God on the Gracely road.

Surviving with the widow are four daughters, Mrs Ima Dorman of 496 Windsor street, Mrs D'Esta Furniss and Mrs Alberta Criswell of near Meeker, and Mrs Juanita Tron of near Agosta, the son, six grandchildren, three sisters, Mrs. Mary Fritz of 438 Thompson street, Mrs Anna Hecker of Agosta and Mrs Gertrude Bumbarger of Espyville, and three brothers, Samuel, Daniel and John Seiter, all of whom farm in the vicinity of Agosta.

Friends may call after 7 to*night at the home.* The funeral will be conducted at the home Friday at 2 p m. Burial will be made in Meeker cemetery. Rev John R Miller, pastor of Salem Church of God, will officiate.

By The Associated Press

CROSLEY FIELD, CINCINNATI, Oct. 2—Detroit put together a five-run second inning and a two-run fifth frame splurge today to win 7 to 2 over Cincinnati in the opening game of the 1940 World series.

The second-inning barrage drove Paul Derringer, Cincinnati ace, to the showers after he had given up five hits and five runs with only one out, while Bruce Campbell's zooming fifth-inning homer into the right field stands, scoring Rudy York ahead of him, was off relief hurler Whitey Moore.

The official attendance was 31,703.

First Inning

Second Inning

Tigers—Greenberg smashed the first pitch into the left field corner but was held to one base. York singled into short right center. Campbell laid a sacrifice bunt down the third base line but was safe at first when Werber's throw pulled McCormick off the bag and the bases were filled.

Higgins singled into center scoring Greenberg and York and sending Campbell to second.

Sullivan walked, filling the bases. Newsom sent a bounder to F McCormick who threw to Wil*son forcing* Campbell and leaving the bases filled.

Bartell lined a single past Derringer's head and into center field scoring Higgins and Sullivan and putting Newsom on second.

Gehringer popped to Werber. Greenberg, worked the count to two and two and then grounded out, Werber to F. McCormick.

Five runs, five hits, two errors two left.

Reds—Ripple waited out a three and two count and then grounded to Gehringer. Wilson lifted a high fly to Greenberg in short left. Joost lined a single to right. Myers grounded to Gehringer who threw to Bartell forcing Joost at second.

One run, two hits, no errors, none left.

Fifth Inning

Tigers—Greenburg struck out as the crowd roared. York tripled against the right field fence about 370 feet from home plate. Campbell then lined a home run into the bleachers in right center field scoring York

RED CROSS SPEEDS CLOTHING SUPPLIES

Marion Women Awaiting Materials for Refugees.

Materials to meet the clothing and knitting quota of the Marion County Red Cross chapter war relief work will be here as soon as the American Red Cross production department can ship them, according to a letter received today from William Carl Hunt, acting manager of the eastern area.

There has been considerable delay in getting materials and many Marion organizations have been ready for several weeks to begin sewing and knitting, Miss Lillian Flack, executive secretary, said today.

Mr. Hunt advised the chapter that everything possible is being done to expedite shipments. The yarn and cloth have been purchased by the treasury department with part of the $50,000,000 appropriated by congress for foreign war relief. Mr. Hunt explained that upon receiving the quota the war relief production department computes the amount of material required and prepares a requisition on the Red Cross supply service, which then sends shipping instructions to the procurement division of the government.

"Because of the large amount of material required, purchases were made from numerous manufacturers scattered throughout the country," Mr. Hunt wrote. "Therefore, the procurement division must group the shipping instructions by regions and by manufacturers and then forward to the instructions to the state procurement offices. A representative of the state office then visits the factory, turns over the shipping instructions, prepares the government bills of lading and sees that shipments are actually made."

Mrs. Paul Knauss, production chairman of the Marion county chapter, is in charge of the sewing and knitting here.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Oct. 3

DESPITE some very excellent prospects and promises for success and accomplishment there may be several difficult situations and tenacious obstacles to cope with, judging by the conflicting force of important planets. Matters seem to be imbued with forces pulling two ways and vigorously, with expansive and ambitious projects hampered and restricted by stubborn opposition, limitation and selfish interests. But under shrewd and sagacious effort and with the support and sympathy of those in power there may be brilliant achievements.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which really great attainments and brilliant success may have to be wrested from a set of contradictory and thwarting influences. While there are expansive and ambitious objectives in sight yet there are tenacious obstacles, perhaps delays and sinister antagonism to cope with. But under shrewd manipulation and with the assured cooperation of those in prestige and influence there should be ultimate victory, together with much personal gratification.

A child born on this day will have many talents and abilities for vanquishing opposing forces. He should show creative ability, originality and bravery, combined with sagacity, shrewdness and much subtlety.

Gibraltar Held by British for Two Centuries

By The Associated Press

The Rock of Gibraltar, key to the western end of the Mediterranean, was captured by the British in 1704 during the war of the Spanish succession and had remained in their hands ever since.

In 1726 the Spaniards made a brief unsuccessful attempt to regain the rock, and on July 6, 1779, began a fruitless siege which lasted for three years.

Since the beginning of the current war the British have greatly strengthened the Gibraltar defenses, but how effective they might prove against modern weapons of offense is still a question.

The Peninsula on which the rock stands is about 2½ miles long and less than a mile wide. British engineers have dug a channel across the base of the peninsula in recent months, severing the connection with the Spanish mainland.

The town of Gibraltar and the naval base could be pounded by guns at the base of the peninsula or at Algeciras, five miles across the bay to the west.

Heavy guns near Cetua, Spanish Morocco, which is only 15 miles across the strait of Gibraltar, also could reach the fortress.

During the Spanish civil war there were rumors the Germans had installed big guns both at Algeciras and Ceuta.

ROTARY HEARS TALK ON YOUTH'S MISSION

Native of Belgium Voices Appeal for Democracy.

Democracy can be preserved only through youth and for that reason America's young people must be taught a more thorough understanding of democracy.

That was the message brought to the Marion Rotary club and guests yesterday by Maurice Kinsler, a native of Belgium who had extensive experience as a leader of work among boys in that country.

Now an American citizen, he is employed as a representative of the Producers Releasing Corp. of Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Mr. Kinsler spoke following the club's weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding, taking as his subject, "Youth and Democracy."

Explaining the difference between democracy as it existed in Europe and the democracy of this country, he said the system failed in France and Belgium because there it was superficial, with only "lip service" paid to it.

America's most valuable contribution to the science of government is its system of checks and balances, Mr. Kinsler said.

Youth of today was described as "too soft," and "bereft of heroism because of its fear of suffering." Mr. Kinsler declared there "must be instilled in youth a sense of mission."

George E. Planck, president of the Rotary club, announced that the organization had made a contribution of $25 to the fund being raised to purchase an iron lung for the City hospital.

Guests were Rotarians Bert Spelman of Kent, Howard Conaway and Paul Fleming of Cardington, E. F. Gebhart of Columbus and Frank S. McNeal of Detroit, president of the Universal Cooler Corporation, new industry now being moved from Detroit to Marion, and C. H. Van Pelt of Cincinnati.

This afternoon's program was devoted to the Women's Missionary societies of the association and was featured by talks by Dr. Edward M. Freas, former missionary to the Congo, and Dr. Paul Judson Morris of Granville, executive secretary of the Ohio Baptist convention.

Rev. J. H. Goewey of Richwood delivered the missionary sermon yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Nora Johnson and Mrs. Charles Jones of Green Camp furnished music, and prayers were offered by Rev. Ray McMillen of Mt. Gilead and Rev. W. E. Hayden of Haskins.

The church must face the world, live a blameless life, reflect the light and hold forth the world of life, Rev. Brinkman said last night in a sermon on "Four Things the Church Must Do." Rev. Bigelow conducted the opening and closing services. Prayer was offered by Rev. Marvin Crabtree of Marion who was ordained to the ministry 10 years ago in the Green Camp church.

Industry Urged To Let Employes Plan Recreation

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2—Let employes share in planning and financing factory recreation activities, urged T. S. Sadler of Cleveland upon the national recreation congress today.

He told the country's leaders in this field it is the manufacturer's "responsibility to offer employes opportunity to relax during leisure hours."

He gave a cross-section of an elaborate and successful system at the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Co. where he is personnel manager.

"We have bowling leagues, baseball teams, basketball teams, tennis teams, a fishing club, hunting club, a skeet and pistol club," he said. "Not everyone is interested in sports, so we have a camera club, a dramatic club and a choral club. Then we have picnics, a Christmas party, clam bakes, fight shows, dances and banquets."

Sadler estimated success of the program through attendance of 50,000 persons at the recreational functions during the past year.

Factory recreation "should be developed along the employes' ideas rather than those of the management," he said. "A great deal of money has been wasted by companies which did not observe this principle.

"We believe employes appreciate recreation more if they contribute a portion of the cost. We match every dollar so contributed.

"A good recreation program does not exist for the purpose of advertising the company. When persons are employed because of their athletic ability, the program is failing in its primary function of providing for those who have helped build up the company."

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Mohler Hanson

[illegible] Lovely Lynn [illegible] way to visit [illegible] Mongol prince, [illegible] apparently to be [illegible] handsome, American [illegible] friend of the prince. [illegible] finds that she is not [illegible] but must go and [illegible] his wishes.

CHAPTER SIX

Strange Dinner

LYNN dropped into a chair, shaking uncontrollably. She remembered Dick's warning that some of these people had strange powers. In another minute, and with a little more encouragement, she would have been whispering her dreams to this stranger. She took herself determinedly in hand.

"Lynn Britton, snap out of it. You're no girl to be hypnotized by your own imagination and a [illegible] young man with tea-colored eyes."

She rose and went to the far corner by the kang where the maid sat embroidering. The girl rose and bowed.

"My brother," Lynn explained, "Do you know my brother? A white man?"

The maid brightened. "Yis, yis, white man." She made a motion of broadening her shoulders. "Big man—silong, plitty—not? You likee Temu Darin?"

Lynn tried again. "Do you know a white man? My brother. Face not wide. White like me." With two fingers she touched her cheek, chin and throat. "White like me."

The girl giggled and hid her face, peeking at Lynn through her fingers.

"Yis, yis," she giggled. "Him like you white."

Lynn gave up and walked to the window. The sky was clouding over and a strong wind twisted the bare elm tree at the gate. The immediate courtyard was empty, but she heard a commotion in a side court, the chatter of coolies, the roll of iron wheels over brick, and the thud of packing boxes. The familiar stutter of a motor-truck engine was like a message from home. She could not be very far from familiar civilization after all.

A knock was heard at the door, then Temu Darin came in once more.

"Sherdock tells me," he said, "that without doubt we shall hear from your brother tonight. I thought you would like to know."

"I do!" she cried. "How did you find this out?"

He spoke simply. 'Sherdock has the power."

The maid broke into a clatter of Chinese. Temu Darin listened, his face expressing incredulity. As she repeated her words emphatically, putting two fingers to her cheek, chin and throat, he shot Lynn a quick glance.

Horrified, she began to color. Then he smiled, said something gaily to the girl, and left.

Lynn waited until he had time to return to his quarters, then started immediately for the door. She meant to get out of this place.

The maid scurried to the door barring her way. "No, no glo!" she cried. "Temu Darin say you no glo."

"Am I a prisoner?" Lynn demanded.

"No, no, I you slavee. You wait. He come back. You glo now, he beat me." The girl went through the contortions of writhing from the blows of a club on her back.

"Beat you!" Lynn recoiled.

She could pick up this child and set her aside as easily as if she were a puppy. But what was the use? She turned and paced the floor in a maze of distress. So this was what her sweet dreams had led her into! Was it real? Was it possible that this thing could be happening to her, Lynn Britton?

Her thoughts turned to Sherdock Puyeh. He had said: "The gods, the demons, the whole universe is but a mirage which exists in the mind, springs from it, sinks into it." He had said mirage, not illusion. And a mirage is a reflection, however distorted, of something that really exists.

Gentle Captors.

As if in response to her thoughts, Sherdock knocked at her door. Boys from the kitchen followed him in.

"My child," he said, "Temu and I shall dine with you tonight."

The servants lit the lamps and began setting the table.

"Will you arrange a place for my brother?" she asked as he warmed his hands over a glowing brazier.

"There is a place for your brother's message which is all that will come tonight."

She felt the situation as maddening, unbearable. "Then when will he come—if you have the power to foretell?"

He shrugged. "Things work themselves out."

"I see they do," she exclaimed. "My brother has disappeared and I am held here prisoner. What on earth can it mean?"

Temu Darin entered wearing army clothes of London make. The uniform, a link with the familiar world, was like a personality. It had a strange effect on Lynn, as if a friend had appeared though he brought an enemy with him.

He bowed and answered. "We are merely taking care of you as representatives of the Prince of Shani Lun."

Lynn's eyes remained hostile. "I warn you to take good care of me. I am an American citizen and I have important friends."

"My dear," murmured the little priest, "we shall protect you with our lives."

She looked at his serene, smiling face and felt somewhat comforted.

Presently they sat down at the table, lovely with silver and linen and Chinese porcelain. In the center a bowl of pink roses from the green-houses of Peiping shed their elusive fragrance.

"We are sorry your reception should be like this," remarked Temu Darin, laying his napkin on his knee. "Try not to think of us as enemies."

Lynn wondered if there were something mocking as well as evasive back of his words.

"How else can I think of you?" she asked. Lifting a spoonful of soup to her lips, she sipped it gently and swallowed—a pretty gesture when made by a pretty girl. She saw his heavy-lidded eyes on her throat and added maliciously. "My maid informed me that you would beat her if I left the room."

"Not at all," he answered pleasantly. "Chan, the head coolie, disciplines the servants."

Lynn turned to the lama. "Do you expect me to be philosophical about men who beat women?"

His little eyes twinkled. "Some women need beating."

Lynn sat back in her chair and stared at the bowl of roses. Presently, she laughed and resumed her dinner. What he had said was true; some women do need beating. She had known such women. The old man beamed at her but the young man's eyes were less readable.

"The girl tells me she's a slave," Lynn added. "Does she mean slave?"

"She means slave. She's a gift to you from the Princess Mother, especially trained by her," Temu answered carefully. "Though the child does not understand English very well, you will find her devoted to you."

Lynn took it for a covert apology and her cheeks warmed a bit, but she was glad for the reassurance. "Really a slave," she murmured. "There is something unreconstructed in me that thrills to the idea of owning a slave. I accept her, but I suppose it is my duty as a good American to free her at once."

Little Bamboo.

The lama shook his head. "You can not evade an obligation that easily, my dear. Slaves are freed only from within. Hire her to a mistress or give her to a husband, she is still a slave." Servants brought the final course, consisting of rice and tea.

"You may as well keep the girl," said Temu Darin. "Her name is Little Bamboo."

"Little Bamboo!" Lynn repeated. "I shall write home, 'Dear friends and relatives: I have been given a slave girl; her name is Little Bamboo. She was especial*ly trained for me by the* Princess Mother of Shani Lun.'" She caught herself up suddently. "I am being silly," she said apologetically, burying her face in her hands.

Temu rose and bent over her. "This has been a trying day for you. We shall leave you now."

"Don't go!" she cried looking up. "Don't leave me alone. Stay until we hear from Dick."

The young man turned to the priest who nodded. They rose and moved away from the table and formed a group near a glowing brazier. Temu directed a maid to bring a foot stool for Lynn.

She tried to relax the tense muscles that held her like a jack-in-the-box, ready to jump the moment the lid was loosened. Temu offered her a cigarette and then a light. She turned to the priest, smoking his long-stemmed pipe with a tiny bowl.

"Tell me," she asked, "what consolation is there in the fact that, 'everything is a mirage which exists in the mind, springs from it, sinks into it?'"

His bright little black eyes twinkled again. "The consolation is that you are the one who has the power to make the reflection."

Lynn straightened in her chair, the lid of the charm box quivering to the pressure of her nerves. She felt that she must take things easy, be light and flippant: "You mean to say I'm the mother of this experience?"

He smiled and bowed, "Surely, you recognize your own child."

She thought a moment. "Aren't the rest of you related to the urchin?"

Temu chuckled. "You might call Sherdock its great-uncle."

"You are placing all the responsibility on me. I didn't initiate this visit to Shani Lun—I merely accepted an invitation from the Prince and his family," she protested, watching the men exchange glances.

"That still leaves you the mother of your experience," Sherdock declared, "and reveals that the Prince is its father."

Temu gave a quick, surprised little laugh. "This is becoming a family affair."

Lynn looked at him. Sitting at ease, his long legs crossed he met her eyes for a moment and then glanced down at the ash on his cigarette, flicking it into a tray. She felt he was deliberately giving her a chance to look him over.

Roosevelt and Willkie Statements Touch on National Newspaper Week

Both President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie, the Democratic and Republican candidates for president, have issued statements in recognition of National Newspaper Week, which is being observed from yesterday through next Tuesday throughout the country.

The statements, made in letters to the committee in charge of National Newspaper Week, follow:

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

"I hope in observance of National Newspaper Week that due emphasis will be placed on the necessity for maintaining freedom in a democracy. Freedom of conscience, of education, of speech, of assembly are among the very fundamentals of democracy and all of them would be nullified should freedom of the press ever be successfully challenged.

"I have little fear that freedom of the press will be abridged from external assault in this country. The danger is from internal corruption. If our press exemplifies a passion for truth and justice and fair play to all, it will avoid that spiritual paralysis and decay which are the deadly enemies of our free institutions.

"I trust, as a result of the forthcoming celebration, that our newspapers everywhere — great and small—will rise anew to the tremendous responsibilities which are theirs."

WENDELL L. WILLKIE

"There is nothing more essential to the preservation of a free American democracy than the preservation of a free American press.

"News, accurate and unbiased, is the daily bread upon which a democracy feeds. Pervert the news and control the views of the press—those are the first aims in the would-be dictators' effort to undermine democracy. Lies and controlled propaganda is the stuff upon which dictatorships feed and grow fat. Freedom of the press is the staff of life for any vital democracy.

"The United States is the only great nation in the world today with an absolutely free press. So long as it remains true that our press is free, so long will our democracy survive. So long as it remains true that the press of other nations is shackled, so long will their peoples be living either under the urgencies of war or the whims of despots.

"This means that America's free press today shoulders an historic responsibility. I believe that the publishers, editors and working staffs of America's newspapers are discharging that responsibility in a great and vital American way. If I am elected president of the United States, I shall fight for their right to report honestly, and their right to honestly disagree with me and my administration. I shall not seek to coerce them down the disastrous road of intellectual dishonesty nor to undermine the economic foundations of a free press."

Governor Bricker has also issued a statement in recognition of the week, saying in part: . . .

"I desire to express...to newspaper publishers of this my sincere appreciation of service which they are render to the people of their commu ties and to the state of Oho. free press is the backbone of de mocracy and today more th ever before we must protect th right."

For Home Consumption

STEADILY broadening scope of agreements between the totalitarian powers is too grave a menace to the rest of the world to be passed over lightly yet it must be remembered that most of the things the dictators are saying about the effect of these pacts are for home consumption.

In a dictatorship, especially one engaged in a major war, the people surrender everything to the cause in which their leader is engaged. Freedom of all kinds, personal rights and even the opportunity for a normal living are taken away.

To make up for the lack of personal liberty, the shortage of food and ordinary comforts and the other inescapable effects of tyranny, the people must be fed on big words and fine promises. Submission is sure only when the public is stirred by the stimulus of victory. Any lull in nationalistic flagwaving is deadly to a dictatorship.

This does not account for the new axis pact with Japan and the negotiations going on with Spain and other countries for Hitler wants to add them to his list of stooges but it does explain, in part, the pronouncements which followed completion of these agreements.

The United States has taken the threats from Berlin, Tokio and Rome without surprise or without any undue concern. It knows that these pronouncements, originating in the controlled press of the axis powers, are designed largely for their effect upon the people at home.

The dictators have had few victories at arms to report to their people in recent weeks. It is vital, therefore, that they feed them on grand words of diplomatic accomplishments. Industrial America is vital to the democratic cause and if Hitler can make his people believe that America has been intimidated into withdrawing the support of her factories he will have accomplished one of the mental victories so essential to the totalitarian scheme of rule.

These United States don't want to fight anybody but so long as the axis can tell its own people that its "Hands Off" warning has kept this country neutral it has accomplished an artificial victory that it will serve its purpose until a real one comes along, if a real one ever comes.

Are You Registered?

THE prospects are that one of the largest total votes in the country's history will be cast in the November election and of course Marion county will play its part in this demonstration of democratic citizenship.

But despite widespread interest in the election and its importance to every person, there is always danger that some will lose the right to vote because of failure to qualify. Here in Marion every person of voting age must be properly registered in order to cast a ballot. Those who have not complied with this requirement have only a few days to qualify before the time limit set by law expires and so it is essential that they act without delay.

The county board of elections is providing all possible facilities to help the good work along. The office is to be open extra hours from now until the final registration date, Monday, Oct. 7.

Registration even at the last minute will provide the necessary qualifications, but why wait and take the risk of having it slip your mind? The duty is important enough to attend to now.

What Do the People Think?

NOW that one of the public opinion polls has declared that only a minority of its guinea pigs run a fever over the third term issue, the well-that's-that crowd will consider the matter settled for all time. Fortunately, there will be dissenters.

They will keep right on claiming that when the leader of a party in power rigs his party convention to choke off competition for the nomination he seeks, that when a chief executive gets delusions of indispensability, that when a president of the United States maneuvers himself into a position where he can play dog in the manger, it is high time to fly storm signals. In this particular occasion, it is high time to start wondering about a fourth, fifth and sixth term.

With all the persuasion at their command, they will argue that the founding fathers of the country knew a little something about the government they were establishing and that their fear lest a president perpetuate himself in power at the expense of the people and their hard-won democracy can't be laughed off as a horse and buggy superstition. They may get licked, a majority of the people may not agree with them at first, or may never come to see things their way, but it will be a fight worth waging.

It seems never to have occurred to the well-that's-that crowd that what people think on a given date is not necessarily what they will think a year hence; that democracy is the record of the people's changing opinion; that when minds are closed there can't be any democracy.

News Behind the News

Many Factors Seen To Make U. S. War with Japan Highly Undesirable.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—If there is to be war with Japan, the Japanese will have to start it. Several eminent senators in and out of the New Deal are expressing the private pessimistic view that the United States has been pressed into such a far eastern policy as to make war eventually unavoidable. But there is determined opposition to the war course in the army and navy and around the national defense commission. The guiding spirits of practical policy-making there say flatly we are not ready, cannot be ready within a year or two. Their controlling counsel is dead-set for peace.

Paul Mallon

No less authority than President Roosevelt himself has long believed war with Japan would prove fruitless and indecisive. In an article, "Shall We Trust Japan?" written by the President in the July 23 issue of Asia magazine, he forcefully contended that the extended line of supplies necessary on both sides in such a conflict would prevent a decisive result.

"If our naval experts a decade ago doubted whether we could hold the Philippines with a fleet more than twice as powerful as that of Japan, what would they say today," wrote the President, "When we have a fleet rated as only five to three with that of Japan. (The ratio is now 5-5).

"Nobody would attempt to say what would happen at the end of a military deadlock between Japan and the United States. After the first year or two of hostilities economic causes would become the determining factor, Tableau: Japan and the United States, four or five thousand miles apart, making faces at one another across a no-man's-water as broad as the Pacific."

Vital Supplies

The national defense commission has been quietly anticipating the prospect that Japan may cut our vital supplies of rubber and tin from the Dutch East Indies. Letters have gone out from the commission to five or six American manufacturers to sound them out on construction of synthetic rubber plants. These may be started shortly, but NDC figures at least 10 plants would be necessary to supply the domestic peacetime market, and two years would be required for their construction. Stocks of rubber now on hand will run 9 to 12 months on peace-time consumption.

Tin

Four American concerns have submitted proposals to NDC for constructing tin smelters in this country. All our tin heretofore has been processed in England. But the construction of a smelter would require at least a year. Rationing of tin would be required in event of disruption of our far eastern supplies.

On these and other far eastern commodities now threatened by the Japanese military alliance with the dictators, this country is fairly well fixed to sustain itself if war is forced upon us, but not sufficiently well fixed to make war desirable. These facts bolster the desire of American diplomats to avoid a definite break any time in the near future.

Mexican Problem

The Almazan leaders have been holding back their forces in Mexico because Cardenas will continue in office until Dec. 1 and he has more friends in the army than anyone else. But the lid will be off beginning then and serious trouble is expected.

Atlantic Flights

The British have censored their amazing success in flying heavy bombers across the Atlantic. Until a recent date, out of about 100 Lockheeds flown across (for some reason probably a lack of sufficient fuel capacity they do not fly the Douglas bombers) only two ships have been lost. American pilots get $500 for the trip and return passage on a freighter.

Gas Warfare

News sifting out of occupied France through subterranean official channels suggests both the Germans and British are getting ready to use gas. The British have learned of German activity along the channel coast which leads them to believe Hitler will not abandon his effort to invade Britain without using this outlawed weapon of modern warfare. For their part the British are accumulating large quantities of a new type of mustard gas which is especially effective when sprayed upon the sea from airplanes, and is doubly deadly upon dampened clothing. A Canadian branch of an American chemical concern has increased its output several thousand per cent to supply the British.

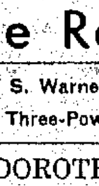
On The Record

U. S. Warned of Significance to This Nation of Three-Power Alliance.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE German - Italian - Japanese pact ought to make clear to Americans, if there are any who still need convincing, that this is no European war, but a world revolution for the redistribution of the entire planet. That's what it was intended to be in the beginning; that's what it is; and in the nature of things it is directed as much against us as against anybody else.



Dorothy Thompson

The original Anti - Comintern pact was between Germany, Italy and Japan. It was a pact designed for war. It was hoped to attract Great Britain into the orbit and, if that failed, to keep Great Britain deluded with the idea that Russia was the only victim intended for slaughter.

Great Britain was not attracted to the Axis, first because of a very sound realization that the program of Nazi Germany is like the program of Rome: "She made subjects of her allies, and slaves of her vassals." Secondly, it was impossible because the British masses believe in democracy and abhor Nazism, third, because the people of Great Britain care deeply for the friendship of the United States.

Failing to conciliate Great Britain, the Axis secured the more or less benevolent neutrality of Russia, thus postponing the reckoning with that country. It will come, if the Axis is victorious, just as it would have come, eventually, with Great Britain if Britain had not been prepared to relinquish or share with the Axis powers her colonial possessions and her strategic bases in the Far East, in the Near East and in the Western Hemisphere. Thus, eventually, and in any case, there would have been the basis of conflict with us.

How Axis Works

The Axis has functioned in regard to Japan just as it functioned in regard to Italy. Germany started the war in Poland with the clear understanding that the move would involve Britain and France. Italy entered at the precise moment agreed upon—with the collapse of France. Germany could, it was reckoned, handle France by herself; for the war with Britain she would need Italy. Had the Battle of Britain succeeded this fall, by a few weeks' "blitzkrieg" after the pattern of France, then Japan probably would not have been invoked at this moment. With the citadel of the British Empire in Axis hands, the Near Eastern and Far Eastern possessions and Commonwealth members could have been cleaned up between the three Axis partners.

Now, by the roundabout route of Japan, Germany and Italy manage to send what amounts to an ultimatum to the United States. If the U. S. A. moves in Europe or joins he war on the side of any Axis enemy, all three powers regard her as an enemy. It is probable that some pressure was brought upon Japan to get her to sign this pact. Russia may have been useful—the suggestion that unless Japan came in now, Russia might be given a free hand in the Far East.

We see with more and more clarity the preposterous folly of a policy whereby, in the face of a world-wide alliance, with strategical positions throughout the planet—Germany on the European Continent and in the Baltic and North Seas; Italy in the Mediterranean, and Japan in the Pacific—the other countries of the world, designed to be the victims of this Axis, have persisted each one in pursuing a lone and solitary program called "neutrality."

If ever there was a time when the words "United we stand, divided we fall" had meaning, it has been the period since the Axis came into being.

Need To Face Facts

I have said it before and I say it again: We have elected to congress a lot of men who don't know that the earth is round, because it is flat where they happen to be standing. The conquest of the planet is not impossible; it is only impossible in unimaginative minds. Caesar conquered what there was of the planet a long time ago. It is easier now than then—and is going ahead a great deal faster.

We need to think in larger terms and we need to think in terms of more acute accuracy.

The Battle for Britain is not a battle for an overcrowded scrap of geography. The Battle for Britain is the Battle for the Atlantic Ocean, just as the Battle for France with Britain was the Battle for the Mediterranean and the seaways to Africa, the Near East and Asia.

If the European Fascist powers control the Atlantic from Europe, and Japan controls the Pacific from Asia, this country will be penned in by the oceans and will be finished as a great power. We shall neither accept this dictum or not accept it. Not accepting it will mean war, and war alone, by ourselves.

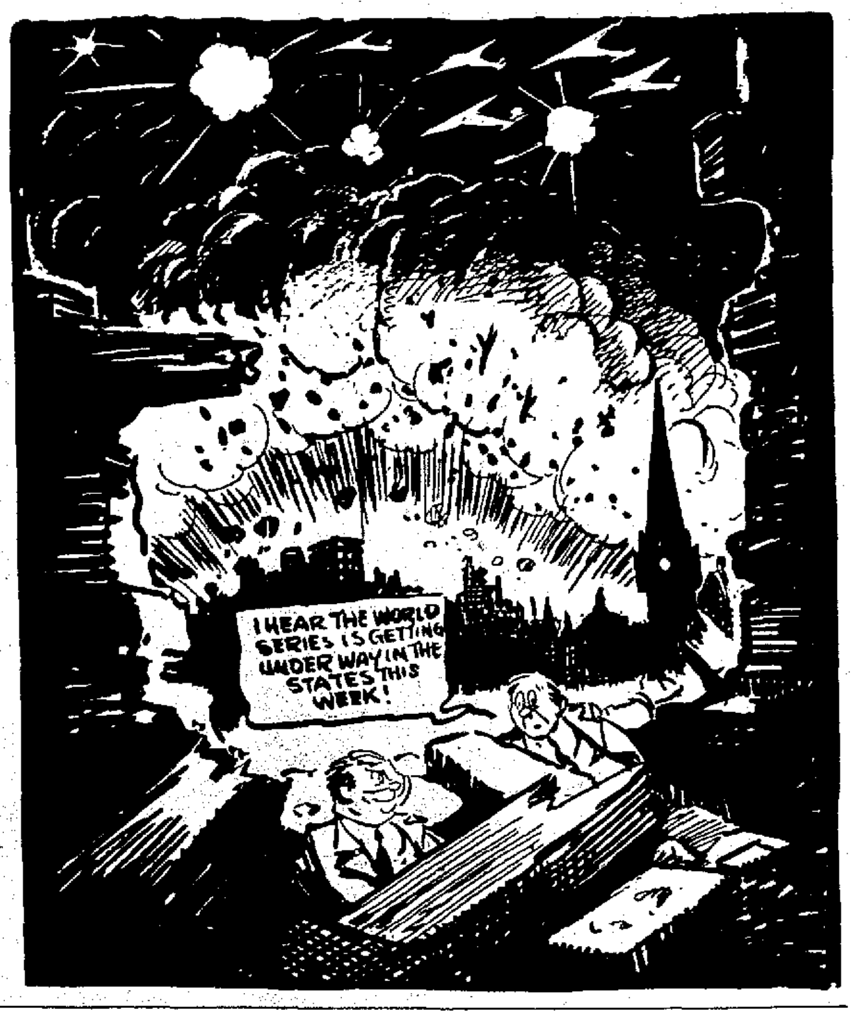
BIG NEWS REACHES LONDON



I HEAR THE WORLD SERIES IS GETTING UNDER WAY IN THE STATES THIS WEEK!

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Oct. 2, 1930.

The Philadelphia Athletics won the second game of the World Series against the St. Louis Cardinals at Shibe park, Philadelphia, by a score of 6-1. This made two victories and no defeats for the Athletics. In this game the Philadelphia pitcher was Earnshaw, while Rhem, Lindsey and Johnson pitched for St. Louis.

Dr. O. G. Stephenson of Marion, president of the Central Ohio Dental society, presided at its annual meeting, held in Mansfield. Marion was chosen for the next annual session.

Miss Florence Hoelzel of Bucyrus and Dr. A. J. Wensinger of Marion were united in marriage in Holy Trinity Catholic church at Bucyrus by Rev. Father Leo Reinartz.

Mrs. L. S. Irey of East Center street went to Portsmouth to attend a branch meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. George Roush of near Marion and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bond of Girard avenue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, Oct. 2, 1920.

Persistent rumors that Leon Trotsky, Bolshevist war minister, had been wounded either in battle or as a result of an attempt to assassinate him, were reaching foreign capitals.

Forest Lawn Presbyterian church was organized to succeed the Forest Lawn mission. Frank Cheney, E. C. Caldwell and Clarence Appleman were ordained elders.

Senator Harding, spaeking to farmers attending an old-fashioned basket picnic and flag raising at Wilson's Corner, voiced opposition to the menacing increase of the tenant farmer in the United States. He advocated improvement of the distribution of farm products and protection of agriculture by a properly adjusted protective tariff. Wilson's Corner was a widely known spot for country events such as picnics and other assemblies. It was located between Plain City and West Jefferson, almost exactly at the junction point of Franklin, Madison and Union couties. Senator and Mrs. Harding and several Republican leaders motored to the picnic grounds accompanied by six other cars carrying newspaper correspondents and Marion residents.

The Battle of America

From the Christian Science Monitor

MILLIONS of Americans believe that their surest defense is to strengthen democracy at home; yet they have been giving eyes and ears to the war in Europe with only an occasional glance over their shoulders at one of the most important national elections they have ever held. They are doing little to decide the Battle of Britain, but are being pulled away from essential democratic discussion of national issues. We yield to no one in our appreciation of the importance to the United States of the struggle over Britain, but we do feel that in the next six weeks Americans can do more to help themselves and for democracy by giving first attention to domestic problems. We welcome, therefore, Wendell Willkie's effort in his speech at Coffeyville to bring citizens back to the Battle of America.

Mr. Willkie believes that American democracy is "in danger from without because it is in danger from within." His conviction rang in his voice at Coffeyville, and it should cause Americans who scoff at danger within to pause and examine the condition of their country and those moral and spiritual values in democracy which Mr. Willkie so rightly emphasized.

WE do not believe that dictatorship is around the corner in the United States. But we do believe that precious values of a free society are being eaten away when millions cannot find work because governmental policies are discouraging free enterprise, when the people are taught to look to Washington for support, when the legislative branch of government loses its grip on the power of the purse and the executive takes it over, when bureaucracy grows like a mushroom and a government of law tends to become a government of men exercising tremendous arbitary power, when class hatreds are encouraged and politicians seek votes by appeals to the selfish interests of blocs instead of asking all to sacrifice for the welfare of all, when billions are added to the public debt but few are willing even to think of paying them off, when defeatism and cynicism and materialism are rampant in Washington and the corrupt machines of the big cities seek to Tammanyize the federal government, when local government decays and power is centralized in one place and one man.

We believe Mr. Willkie is performing a public service in asking Americans to turn to fundamentals of democracy. We believe he is right in urging that the President should have faith in the people. We believe real damage has been done to American democracy by floundering administration even of useful reforms achieved by the Roosevelt regime.

AMERICANS have a right to inquire whether it is insincerity or contempt which asks them to believe that the President had no part in "drafting" himself or that he doesn't know a political speech when he makes one. In any case here is an attitude which basically endangers democracy.

We hope the Republican candidate will not attempt to press the charge that President Roosevelt has weakened democracy abroad. But emphatically it is right that the whole question should be discussed, and the charge that democracy has been weakened at home is so manifestly true that those who seek a third term for Mr. Roosevelt bear the burden of proof. They should tell how they mean to win the Battle of America.

The Turps

Husband Joe Thinks Ethel's Uncl Ben Looks Forward to the Draft a Bit Too Eagerly.

By DAMON RUNYON

Mr. Joe Turp Writes From Brooklyn:—

DEAR SIR: Last night my wife Ethel ses Jc my Uncle Ben was over here today an was telling me all about the draft. He se you will have to register and they will gr you a certain number and then they will dra your number out of a wheel or something an you will have to go in the army for a year.

I ses what makes him so sure they will dra my number, Ethel? I ses there will be a who slew of numbers in that wheel and maybe th will not get mine. She ses O do you kno what they are going to do Joe? I ses certain I know. I ses I read the newspapers once i awhile myself. I ses didn't your Uncle Ben te you about all those other numbers they wi have in there with mine?

Ethel ses O yes he told me there will b many others but he ses they always draw th Turps out first. I ses just a minute Ethe I ses what does he mean by the Turps? I se there will be only one Turp number in ther that I know of. She ses why Joe I think h means all fellows just like you Joe even their name is not Turp. That is the way m Uncle Ben talks. He ses the Turps of th world are little people and of course that very true Joe. You are little people and s am I and so is Uncle Ben. He often speaks o himself as one of the Turps.

I SES Ethel I wish he would not do that because it sounds like he belonged to us an you know very well I have got no use f your Uncle Ben. Ethel ses yes but he is ver interesting Joe.

You ought to listen to him some time. H ses when they start drawing numbers for something that is not so good in this country somehow the Turps always come out first and th is why they are sure to get yours because th Turps are little people. Do you want to he what else my Uncle Ben ses?

I ses no I don't and Ethel ses well he s he would bet if they put ten thousand numbers of big people in a wheel or something an only one Turp number and mixed them all u the Turp would come out first. He means som one of the little people like you and me Jo My uncle Ben ses it was wonderful the way th Turps numbers came out first in the big war h was in. You know my Uncle Ben won th war Joe.

I ses yes so I have heard him say. I ses suppose he thinks there will be some hoc pocus about drawing those numbers this tin so certain ones will come out first? She s do you mean something wrong Joe? I ses y I suppose he thinks there will be somethin wrong and Ethel ses O no Joe. My Uncle Be ses there does not have to be anything wron for the Turps numbers to come out first. H ses fate looks after that.

I SES well Ethel as far as I am personal concerned you do not have to worry ev if they draw my number first. I ses I am married fellow and while I have to regist the same as everybody else they are not goi to put the married fellows in the army rig away. Ethel ses yes my Uncle Ben explain about that too Joe. He ses when they dra your number some fellows will send for n and want to know if I would be able to support myself if you were put in the arm Wouldn't that be funny Joe?

I ses how do you mean funny Ethel? Sl ses why for them to ask me a question li that. I would have to laugh right in the faces because I would get to thinking of t jobs I could get tomorrow. I ses do you mea to tell me you would not say no if it wou keep them from putting me in the arm Ethel ses why Joe you would not want me tell a lie would you? I ses no I suppose n Ethel and she ses besides my Uncle Ben s the fellows who will ask me will be fellov who live right around this neighborhood a of course they will know all about us and th would laugh too if I ses I could not suppo myself.

I ses well they have not drawn my numb yet and I am not going to think anythi about it until they do and Ethel ses neith am I Joe but of course I can't help worryi a little about when they start drawing. M Uncle Ben says the Turps are just natural bound to come out first if only because the are more Turps in the world than anyone els Do you understand that Joe?

I SES no and anyway I am going to bed a Ethel ses yes and my Uncle Ben ses l will come and live in our house when yo get put in the army and I am supporting m self so I will not get lonesome. I ses tha fine Ethel but have you thought that you w have to support him too? She ses why no J I hadn't thought of that. I will tell him the ne time I see him. I would rather be lonesome.

Yours truly,

JOE TURP.

CONG. SMITH URGES FINANCIAL INQUIRY

Monetary Study in Relation to Defense Proposed.

Eighth District Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion will ask congress to investigate the country's financial structure and its relation to "total defense," The Associated Press reported today from Washington.

Dr. Smith, long a student of monetary affairs, announced he would introduce a resolution proposing appointment of a special committee to conduct a broad inquiry into the adequacy of the money system in emergency as well as normal times.

Declaring that the national debt was "serious and menacing," Smith said in a house speech Monday that congress ought to take responsibility for overhauling the financial program instead of continuing a "passive attitude."

"It is no part of this discussion to lay the blame for our trouble to any particular political party," said Smith. "It has its root causes so deep in the past that it is now impossible to trace all of them to their sources, much less locate them in individuals or political parties."

Asserting that the country's fighting forces were only as strong as "their chief source of supply—the treasury," Smith said, "It appears to me that the subject of the public debt now has become almost taboo in the house chamber. And I for one think there has developed a belligerency against it."

PRESIDENT DEPLORES MICHIGAN INCIDENTS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—President Roosevelt considers missle-throwing in a political campaign a thoroughly reprehensible practice.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke out at his press conference yesterday when asked about the "harsh treatment" accorded Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, while campaigning in Michigan.

The question referred to incidents during Willkie's appearance at Detroit and Pontiac. At Detroit a scrap basket was dropped from a high window as Willkie was passing, and a bystander was injured. At Pontiac an egg was thrown at Willkie's car, spattering the dress worn by Mrs. Willkie.

Voicing his disapproval of such demonstrations, Mr. Roosevelt said he believed the laws of most states would classify the scrap basket incident as an assault and crime.

He said he had been informed that an employe of the Reconstruction Finance corporation was involved in the scrap basket incident. If so, he declared, she should forfeit her position.

TIE-UP WITH COMMUNISM DENIED BY BUND LEADER

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 2—Efforts of a Dies subcommittee to establish a link between Communist and German-American bund activities in this country were continued today in the wake of an assertion by G. Wilhelm Kunze, national leader of the bund, that his organization opposed importation of Communism, Hitlerism or any other foreign political system.

During his three hours on the witness stand as the committee investigating un-American activities began a series of hearings here yesterday, Kunze denied all collaboration with Communists or any other groups and said he had "specific orders that there was to be no connection of any kind."

HOW STATEWIDE VOTE POLL STANDS TODAY

By The Associated Press

Congress Starts To Pick Flaws in Tax Measure

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The complex excess profits tax bill, voted after weeks of contention, reached President Roosevelt's desk otday, but already congressional dissatisfaction with the measure was being voiced and there were bipartisan demands for a thorough overhauling of the entire national revenue structure.

One of the last big obstacles to a long-sought congressional recess, the excess profits legislation whipped through both house and senate yesterday in rapid fashion. The President's approval was expected promptly because the bill contains provisions deemed essential for furthering the defense program.

Congressional action on an excess profits measure left only the $1,460,000,000 defense appropriations bill as the major obstacle to recess. This bill, carrying the funds for the conscription program and the creation of an expanded army, already has received house approval but has not yet been reported out of senate committee.

Discuss Recess Dates

With Nov. 11 and Nov. 18 mentioned as dates until which a recess should be taken, house Democratic leaders made an informal checkup on sentiment today. In the event opposition materializes to a layoff of such duration, it was understood that leaders would resort to a series of 3-day recesses for the period.

As the excess profits bill went to the White House, opponents continued to inveigh against it as a "tax atrocity" which falls far short of objectives both in producing revenue and in preventing swollen profits in defense industries.

The bill has these four main points:

1—It would increase the normal corporation income tax on firms earning more than $25,000 a year from the present rate of 20.9 per cent to 24 per cent.

2—It would levy an impost of from 25 to 50 per cent on what the bill designated as "excess profits."

Limit Set Aside

3—It would suspend existing statutory limitations on profits that may be made on government warship and aircraft contracts.

4—It would permit industries to deduct from taxable income over a 5-year period the cost of facilities and expansion necessary to handle defense contracts.

The bill's yield was estimated at $525,000,000 on 1940 income, and between $900,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 in subsequent years.

Opponents were quick to point out, however, that this additional revenue would be a mere drop in the bucket when compared with the $15,000,000,000 in defense outlays voted by this session of congress.

O. N. G. PARTY

the meeting, it is to be community-wide in spirit and members are asking all patriotic, fraternal and civic organizations and all residents of Marion and vicinity to take part.

Details of the program are being worked out. In addition to Judge Mathias talks will be given by Major George T. Geran, overseas officer of the World war, Captain Hubert L. Taylor of Co. D, and Lieutenant Walter E. Matboit of the Headquarters Detachment. The band, directed by Homer E. Huffman, will play a concert outside The Star auditorium preceding the meeting and will play two patriotic selections during the program hour.

OHIO RETAIL MERCHANTS OPPOSE PRICE BOOSTS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—The Ohio Council of Retail Merchants today launched a campaign to prevent unjustifiable increases in retail prices because of defense activity.

At its 18th annual meeting here yesterday, the council indorsed a program asking merchants to report undue increases in wholesale prices, discouraging speculation in inventory stocking, and oppose advertising that misleadingly suggests scarcities.

The 123 merchant association representatives also approved the present system of collecting Ohio tales tax.

Bolton S. Armstrong of Cincinnati was elected president. John W. Rudin of Mount Vernon was named a trustee.

G. T. GERAN NAMED TO HEAD WILLKIE GROUP

George T. Geran, has been named chairman of the county organization being formed to enlist the aid of the legal profession for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate. His appointment was announced today by Grant E. Mouser Jr., who is chairman of a four-county organization.

DISTRICT LUTHERAN WOMEN TO CONVENE

28 Societies To Send Groups to Marion Meeting.

Members of the Woman's Missionary society of Emanuel Lutheran church this week are completing arrangements to entertain the ninth annual convention of the North Central Group, Ohio District, of the American Lutheran Women's Missionary federation, next Tuesday at Emanuel church.

Twenty-eight societies will send delegations to the convention. The North Central group comprises an area extending as far north as Fostoria and east as far as Ashland. Marion county churches mark the southern boundary.

"Fervent in Spirit; Serving the Lord," will be the program theme.

Speakers will include Mrs. William Fritz of Arcanum, O., a returned missionary to India, Rev. Walter Schmidt of Cleveland, Mrs. G. C. Gost of Columbus, president of the Ohio district, and Mrs. Em. Poppen of Columbus, vice president of the General Federation.

Officers of the group are Mrs. F. R. Sponseller of Bucyrus, president; Mrs. A. G. Veith of Upper Sandusky, vice president; Mrs. G. C. Heffelfinger of Willard, secretary; Mrs. E. H. Bletz of Crestline, treasurer. Mrs. J. Fred Clagett is president of the Emanuel church society.

DRAFT

committee are above the draft age limit of 35. All are residents of the districts in which they or their boards will have jurisdiction.

The residence requirement will assure appointment of men who are reasonably familiar with conditions in their own draft districts.

Representative Group

The men selected by the committee include business men, shop workers, professional men and farmers. The advisory boards include, as far as possible, a lawyer and two non-lawyers. The appeals agents are all lawyers.

The committee has made every effort, members reported, to obtain a representative selection not only geographically but by occupations.

When the county's nominations are complete, the names will be forwarded to Gov. Bricker. He will forward to Washington the recommendations for the five-man draft boards and the appeals agents, who will be formally appointed by President Roosevelt. Gov. Bricker himself will formally appoint the advisory boards.

It is not expected that the names will be announced until the appointments are actually made by the president and governor, committee members here said.

Whether the recommending committee will continue to exist after it completes its selections is not known. It may be, one member said, that the committee will continue in effect and serve to nominate men for vacancies should any occur.

Plans for Registration

Meanwhile, no date has been set by the Marion county board of elections for a special meeting to set up machinery to handle registration of the county's men of draft age on Oct. 16. Dr. C. J. Altmaier, election board chairman, is expected to call a meeting shortly. It is certain, however, that all men of the county between the ages of 21 and 35, inclusive, must go to their regular voting places on Oct. 16 between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. and register for the draft.

Perry was the first of Ohio's 88 counties to complete arrangements for selective service registration Oct. 16, The Associated Press reported.

E. Dwight Wolfe, county election board clerk, reported two volunteer workers assigned to each of the county's 65 precincts to register men 21 to 35 years old, while the county selective service committee recommended prospective members of draft advisory and appeals boards for appointment by Gov. Bricker.

Employes of the Columbus school system were guaranteed reinstatement after a year's military training, whether voluntary or by conscription.

A film dealing with diagnosis and treatment of pneumonia was shown. It presented a series of pneumonia cases in New York hospitals.

SEC. HULL 69 TODAY, GOES ON WITH WORK

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Cordell Hull was 69 today and too preoccupied with world affairs to think much about it.

The secretary of state, who was born in a backwoods cabin in Tennessee but has an international outlook which belies the provincial limitations of his early background, planned to work as usual.

CONDEMNED TO DEATH

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2—Eugene Harris, Dayton Negro, was condemned by the state supreme court today to be electrocuted Oct. 23 in Ohio penitentiary for the slaying Sept. 30, 1939, of Detective Sgt. Lucius Rice.

This is one of the first pictures to reach America showing ex-King Carol of Rumania with Magda Lupescu, since Carol abdicated under pressure from the Axis powers. Republicans Hear Bricker and Burton

205, up $30,308 over the last year of the Davey administration.

(Incidentally, Governor Bricker mentioned the name Davey only once. This came when he said: "After we pay the Davey debt, we'll be able to pare down taxes.")

Highway Record

Governor Bricker also cited the record of his highway department, declaring that Ohio has more miles of state highway than New York, yet turns back to the counties more state tax money than New York.

After trying a couple of times to remember the correct number of millions of dollars spent on highways, the governor said: "When I get up in the millions, it's a little out of my experience."

Also mentioned favorably was the school foundation system. He declared the state last year gave out 10 million dollars more for schools than in 1938. At the beginning of his administration, the system was in debt 18 million dollars, he said, but this has been reduced and payments now are made in full and on time.

During the Davey administration, he said, Marion county school boards went into debt $121,174. The Bricker administration has paid $38,745 on that debt, including $2,763 in interest, he said.

Cites School Funds

Marion county schools in 1939 received $52,093 more from the state than in 1938, he added, getting a grand total of $344,913.

He promised that as long as he is governor, he will not withhold any state funds from local governments.

His administration, Governor Bricker said, distributed to local subdivisions 12 million dollars for local government operation, 10 millions for relief and paid 3 millions in the school debt and paid off a shortage in the teachers' retirement fund. The state ended up 1939 with a surplus of 3¼ million dollars, he said.

This was done, he commented, without new taxes or any increase in taxes as had been promised.

He renewed his promise of "no new taxes" during the next two years.

The state's tax policy, Governor Bricker said, helps business, keeps Ohio business in Ohio instead of driving them to other states—"and that means jobs."

Hits Subsidies

It is impossible, he charged, for government to put enough men on the payroll and pay enough subsidies to bring back prosperity.

"Prosperity will come through encouraging private business and employment of labor at good daily wages," he said.

People are becoming interested in good, economical government, the governor declared, and added: "When people get in the frame of mind where they ask "What can I do for my government?' and not 'What can my government do for me'?—then America is on the road to recovery."

"I've driven the chiselers and grafters out of your state government and they're going to stay out as long as I'm in the state house," he declared.

Glee Club Sings

The speakers arrived at the auditorium a few minutes after 8 o'clock. The program opened with invocation by Rev. John A. Carriker and several songs by the glee club including "We Want Willkie," "Bricker So True" and "How Do You Do, Senator Burton." Other songs were "God Bless America" and "Onward Christian Soldiers," with the audience joining in at times.

State cadidates on the platform were Edward J. Hummel, for secretary of state; Don Ebright, for state treasurer. District candidates included David A. Liggitt, for state senator, and George Middleton for court of appeals. Mrs. Frederick C. Smith attended in the absence of her husband, who is held in Washington by the long congressional session. Mrs. Willa Brollier of Mt. Gilead, district committeewoman, Mrs. Burton and Mrs. Russell C. Snare, wife of the mayor, also were on the platform, along with several county candidates and James E. Messenger, county G. O. P. central committee chairman.

Bricker and Burton Guests at Meeting

Republican candidates visiting here for a political rally last night made an unscheduled appearance at the meeting of the Marion County Fish & Game Protective association, in the Eagles' building, following the rally. Governor Bricker, Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, Edward J. Hummel of Cincinnati, Don Ebright, state treasurer, and French Crow, chairman of the Marion county executive committee, were among the guests. Governor Bricker and Mayor Burton spoke briefly on conservation. A barbecued chicken dinner was served to guests and members at the close of the meeting. Arrangements for the dinner were made by Ralph Coberly.

DEPARTMENT STORES REPORT SALES GAIN

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2 — Increased employment and larger payrolls helped send the seasonally adjusted index of department store sales higher—with one exception—than any time since December 1929, the federal reserve bank of Cleveland reported today in its monthly survey of the Fourth district.

That exception was February, 1937, the bank said in its review of Ohio, eastern Kentucky, western Pennsylvania and the West Virginia panhandle — a territory which includes about half the nation's steel-making capacity.

"The circle of industrial activity widened during August and early September to include lines less directly dependent upon national preparedness program developments," the bank noted.

"Working forces at 100 Cleveland plants on Aug. 27 were the largest in three years; 52 Toledo factories employed more men in the third week of September than at any other time since 1939. Other cities showed similar contra-seasonal gains, and Ohio industrial employment in August was up 2.7 per cent from a year ago."

Department store sales jumped in August 17.6 per cent over the same month of last year.

NAZI PLANES

air ministry said, RAF warplanes dropped salvos of bombs on a dozen cities and towns, attacking a munitions factory in Berlin and other military objectives at Duisberg, Cologne, Sterkrade-Holten, Gelsenkirchen, Hamm, Soest, Westerhold, Grinberg, Coblenz, the Ruhr, Rotterdam, Flushing, Dunkerque, Boulogne, Calais and Le Havre. Nazi long-range gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez were also heavily bombed. The ministry said.

The German high command listed severe attacks on British objectives, asserting that a great fire was set at Manchester and that bombs fell on Liverpool port facilities, an armament plant north of London and several airports.

A Nazi communique admitted that RAF bombers "raided a number of western German cities, where great fire damage was caused to numerous apartment houses," and said that the raiders dropped fire bombs and explosives "on a brick works west of Berlin."

RAF pilots who took part in the attack on Berlin said they saw many fires and explosions, and one pilot reported "four terrific explosions" after he tripped his bomb-rack over an electrical equipment factory in the German capital.

Coincident with the RAF's new aerial assault, Britain's minister of economic warfare, Hugh Dalton, reported that the British blockade is attaining "a remarkable degree of success."

Dalton cited an axis shortage of many vital war supplies as a result of the blockade — including alloys, rubber, lead, copper, textiles—and he declared:

"We have evidence already that the Nazis have practically exhausted all the oil which they have looted from countries they overran.

"Now they are back where they were," he said, "with the additional handicap that they have to provision the overrun countries in order that their economic life may continue at all."

SCHOOLS AIDING IN IRON LUNG GIFTS

City Public School Pupils To Present Funds Thursday.

Every boy and girl in the Marion pubic schools will be given the opportunity Thursday to contribute towards the purchase of an iron lung for Marion city hospital.

The day was set last Friday by Supt. E. E. Holt who, at the time, expressed the belief that the children of the community would be anxious to do their part towards buying the hospital the device to fight infantile paralysis.

All of the public school money will be lumped together and reported as one contribution.

Miss Lillian McCarthy, originator of the movement, said today that reports were beginning to come in from the county schools. St. Mary Parochial school pupils gave $50 Monday. Public contributions at the banks on Tuesday were to be collected at noon today.

WILLKIE

tered into about us with other powers. This government belongs to the people. We may not know what negotiations he is engaged in, but we are entitled to know."

The present administration has brought an economy "feeble and unable to perform its functions," Willkie declared.

Attacks Lehman Speech

Previously aboard the train enroute to Cleveland, Willkie described as "false, malicious and subversive" a speech by Gov. Herbert H Lehman of New York that President Roosevelt's defeat would bring satisfaction to Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and Japan.

While completing an address on international relations for delivery at Cleveland tonight, Willkie issued a statement saying:

"I stand for our democratic way of life. And so intensely do I feel about this that I have gone out of my way in this campaign to give unity to certain aspects of our foreign policy.

"I have sought to avoid any risk of any suspicion in foreign minds of a disagreement in this county on our fundamental attitudes toward aggression and toward aid to Britain. Mr. Lehman ought to know that, too."

The Republican presidential nominee gave out his statement just after he left Grand Rapids, Mich., where he proposed a three-point method of increasing employment: increased production, stabilization of the tax structure and elimination of government red tape.

About the time the statement was being made public, a two-inch stone was thrown through the double window of a dining car on Willkie's train. It hit William C. Murphy, Washington correspondent for the Philadelphia Inquirer, but caused only slight abrasions on his hand.

Willkie's train remained during the night at Sturgis, Mich., to allow a morning stop at Adrian, Mich. Then the schedule called for short talks at Toledo, Oak Harbor, Sandusky, and Elyria, O., before going to Cleveland in the evening.

The nominee devoted most of yesterday to campaigning in Michigan labor centers, telling audiences at Pontiac, Flint and Lansing that they should keep their minds open on current issues.

His final speech was delivered at sundown in the heart of Grand Rapids, where he told a cheering crowd that "the road to prosperity is paved with jobs."

"If you stop production," he said, "or if, as the New Deal has done, you discourage and cut down production you have created unemployment. And you have cut the jugular vein of America.

"So, the first thing that we are going to do to put the 9,600,000 back to work is to encourage increased production. . what we must have is new enterprises—about 700,000 of them to take care of our needs."

Kills Free Enterprise

Contending that the New Deal is "trying to kill free enterprise," Willkie said continuation of unemployment was to be feared by American workers because "there are 9,600,000 people looking for your job;" because more than 500,000 new workers come to maturity each year, and because "it is simply not possible for the government to go on supporting a growing number of the unemployed."

In most of his appearances yesterday the nominee appealed to his hearers to keep open minds on campaign issues. At Pontiac and Flint there were alternate boos and cheers for the candidate

At Washington, President Roosevelt term as "reprehensible" treatment accorded Willkie in his tour of Michigan and said that he imagined the laws of most states classified deeds such as throwing of eggs and other objects as assaults and crimes.

At Lansing, Willkie spoke to a cheering crowd from the state capitol steps, declaring New Dealers had failed to mention in this campaign that the Roosevelt administration had spent $60,000,000,000 and had doubled the national debt.

Willkie received an ovation as he began to speak. When he mentioned the name of President Roosevelt early in his remarks, many in the crowd booed.

Willkie then outlined these suggestions for increasing employment:

1. "Encourage increased production. That will mean that the present employers will hire more men. But it is not enough—what we must have is new enterprises—about 700,000 of them to take care of our needs."

2. "Stabilize our tax structure—put it on a scientific and efficient basis—so that men can predict the future with some reasonable degree of certainty. Enterprises that make a profit must pay a tax ...proportionate to the profit made. But the tax structure will be on a base that will not discourage new enterprises from starting, from hiring more workers."

3. "Cut out the red tape that now paralyzes this country... simplify the innumerable regulations, cut down the weight of government demands for reports, and, more important, stop the hostile attitude of government toward private enterprise."

TIFFIN FARMER FOUND WITH HEAD CRUSHED

By The Associated Press

TIFFIN, O., Oct. 2—His head crushed by a heavy blow, Paul E. Schaefer, 33, Seneca tenant farmer, was in Mercy hospital here today in a critical condition. A farm hand, returning from Findlay, found Schaefer unconscious in his bed, Sheriff Verne F. Deats reported. Schaefer's daughters, 10 and 12, said they had heard footsteps and groaning in their father's quarters but, fearful, had barricaded themselves in their bedroom until the farm hand's arrival.

Active Winter Campaign Hinted by Axis Powers

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Signs multiply that all the belligerents are preparing actively to carry the war through a winter which promises to be hell for Europe — combatants and neutrals alike.

Should the conflict be prolonged as expected it will represent a very considerable degree of success for Britain. It is a mighty achievement to have stood off the defeat which bore down on her with such terrific speed and power as France collapsed and left England to stand alone before the greatest war machine ever constructed.

It seems to me that the outcome of the war likely will pivot on the fact that Britain has survived this crisis. This is so because neither Germany nor Italy has the resources for a long war, and there is at this moment no source of supplies to which they can turn.

Threat Still Present

England still has to get by the Indian summer of this month before being sure that the projected Nazi invasion can't be undertaken this year. The likelihood of this hazardous operation being undertaken is lessening daily.

Once that is off the books the conflict may be expected to settle down to two major engagements. One will be a continuation of the warfare in the air between Britain and Germany. The other will be the battle of the Mediterranean.

It is important to remember that the primary object of Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini in both these operations is to break through that solid British naval blockade which is squeezing all Europe so hard. Essential war supplies and foodstuffs lie outside that steel ring.

Won't Halt Bombings

In the battle of Britain the weather will slow things up, but it won't halt the bombing which is taking such terrible toll in both countries.

The Germans have an added point of strategy which already is under way. That is the sinking of British shipping by submarines and bombing so as to establish a counter-blockade to starve England out.

So far as the battle of the Mediterranean is concerned, it seems to be in the doldrums at the moment. Edward Kennedy, Associated Press war correspondent with the British troops in Egypt, reports: "On a 100 mile trip along the British front in Egypt I have seen no indications that a big Italian push is evident."

However, I don't think it should be taken for granted that the battle of the Mediterranean is permanently bogged down. We may expect action, since Herr Hitler isn't one to let grass grow under his feet.

PONTIAC EGG INCIDENT BLAMED ON STUDENTS

By The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich., Oct. 2—Police took five Pontiac High school students from their classrooms today for questioning concerning the egg-throwing episode which marred the campaign visit yesterday, of Wendell L Willkie, Republican presidential candidate.

Frank Nelson, chief of detectives, said one boy admitted throwing an egg into the Willkie automobile. Another told the officers he threw an egg at the special train as the candidate and his entourage departed. Two other boys said they had eggs but "got cold feet" and did not throw them, police reported.

Officers said the boys characterized their actions as "just a prank."

The student council adopted a resolution of regret over the incident at a special assembly today.

The city council last night passed a resolution apologizing to Mr. and Mrs. Willkie for the incident.

Veritzen, Humble and Broken, Appeals to Madge to Keep News of His Visit from Queen Olga.

FOR the fleeting fraction of a second, I was so astounded at the exhibition of what Lillian terms "Phil Veritzen's colossal gall," that I could not answer his suggestion. Then I found my voice and spoke courteously but firmly.

"I am sorry, but that arrangement is impossible."

I could have gone on and explained, but I was so annoyed at him that I perversely gave him the opportunity for another question which he promptly seized.

"Why?" The monosyllable evidently was intended to be a missile, but it whizzed harmlessly past me.

"Because," I explained elaborately, "Edith Fairfax is very ill, requiring the constant care of a nurse, and in so nervous a condition that solitude is vitally necessary for her. I have turned that room over to her, and her nurse, Miss Whitlock"

"And there is no other room near here."

"None where they would be as safe as they will be here."

He opened his lips for a further protest, but I forestalled him with what I malevolently guessed would be an effectual stopper to his vial of wrath

"Would you like to see Queen Olga before you go to my father?" I asked.

There was something very like stark terror in his eyes as he turned them on me, and his voice was hoarse and raucous

A Beaten Man.

"Oh! No, no," he said stridently "I—I—can not —must not—see her She must not know that I am here—at least until I know the result of my coming interview with—with—your father"

I am afraid I stared at him blankly for the infinitesimal fraction of time it took me to recover from the astonishment his unusual demeanor had aroused in me To me his fear of seeing Olga was inexplicable. His arrogance in demanding better arrangements for her was perfectly understandable —and familiar. Times without number I had seen him act in exactly that manner. But this sudden deflation, this humble appeal, this stark panic, were beyond my ken.

His imperious concern for his royal fiancee's proper housing had been only a flash in the pan. I realized that as I observed his beaten aspect, almost as though he had received actual physical chastisement, and his unmistakable terror of having Queen Olga discover that he was to be domiciled in the farmhouse.

He needed reassurance and that quickly, I told myself, and immediately gave it to him

Queen Olga Must Not Know

"Unless you wish it," I said, "there is no reason why either Queen Olga or her daughter should know of your presence here You can have your meals served in your room, and thus avoid the necessity of meeting them in the dining room Except for meals, they are keeping strictly to their own rooms, at my father's request"

"It isn't that I don't want to see them," he said nervously. "God knows—" he left the rest of that sentence suspended in air, started on another one

"I can't tell anything of what I want to do," he said—or, rather, stammered, "until I have seen your father"

"He is waiting to see you," I told him "In fact, he asked me to bring you to him as soon as you came in"

For an instant he slumped—there is no other word for it, then he squared his shoulders again

"That is what I am here for," he said with dignity. "Will you please take me to your father?"

Hildegarde Sees a New Trend in Taste for Music

HILDEGARDE
"There's a New Trend . . ."

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK—Hildegarde Loretta Sell is a blond young woman with ideas about what America wants in music.

As Hildegarde (just plain Hildegarde), she's known to every night club patron in town. She's billed as the "international chanteuse."

As Hildegarde Loretta Sell, she's undertaking a series of stage concerts that will bear down heavily on Jerome Kern, George Gershwin, Cole Porter and other more "solid" composers.

Hildegarde sings her sophisticated melodies in a lilting, peculiarly intimate manner. She seems to sing to each patron individually at least once, and some she singles out for a personal wag of the finger or toss of the head.

Eyes Sparkle

To get back to her ideas about music—

She's a modest and very quiet person in ordinary conversation, but her eyes sparkle with enthusiasm and her bright smile flashes when she explains there's a ne wtrend in American tastes in popular music.

"Most of the popular songs are so shallow," she says. "They may be catchy, tuneful and clever, but there's really no substance to them and they last only a few weeks. Some of Kern's and Gershwin's and Porter's things are 20 years old and more and are as good today as when they were written.

Started as Pianist

"I believe the American public is becoming more 'choosy' about its music. The radio is bringing the opera and symphony concerts, as well as educational talks on music. As time goes on, I think Americans will want more art and more artistry in their everyday music. They won't be satisfied simply with jazz."

Hildegarde is a Milwaukee girl. She broke into show business banging the piano in a movie house. Then she sang in night clubs and vaudeville, where Gus Edwards discovered her. She worked in an Edwards show until she saved enough to go to Paris to continue her singing career.

Her rise was swift. When King George was crowned in 1936, she was the only American entertainer at the coronation festivities.

SACRED OBJECTIVE

By International News Service

TOKYO, Japan — No Japanese wants to die until he has climbed his sacred Mount Fuji. One of them gained the national objective rather early in life recently when Tadao Akutagawa and his wife carried their 200-day-old son on the long trek to the summit of the famous crater. The family reached the summit in time to see the sun rise the day following the start of their ascent. The baby's father is a priest.

Harding and St. Mary Gridders Drill On Strategy for Friday's Foes

Prexies Getting Set for NCO Opener With Ashland; Irish at Forest.

SPECIAL strategy sessions are the order of the day in Marion Harding and Marion St. Mary grid camps. Coach Bill Williams is "needling" his unbeaten squad for the opening of the North Central Ohio conference campaign, which begins with Ashland visiting here Friday night. Coach Bernard Berens is prepping the Irish for a Friday afternoon jaunt to the home field of Forest, Hardin county.

The mentors may be inclined to pessimistic views but after studying reports of their scouting staffs, each indicated they expect "plenty of competition" from this week's foes. Both have been doling out special types of offense and defense designed to use against Ashland and Forest.

Williams will have the Harding eleven as near full strength as any time this season, although an injury will keep one backfield candidate on the sidelines. He is luckless Day Hurst, who suffered a dislocated shoulder in early practice sessions, and hasn't been able to break into either of the two games already played.

Ferguson To Be Back

Warren Ferguson, another back, who suffered a severely bruised shoulder at Piqua last Friday will be back in uniform. Others of the team who have been nursing minor hurts will be ready to go with the starter's gun. Lou Petty, the pile-driving ball-carrier, who entered the Piqua contest with a sprained ankle, has recovered rapidly. The workout seemingly cured his ailment.

Scouts Howard Huffman and Ralph Simpson eyed the Ashland-Shelby contest and reported back to Williams that the A's boast a heavy squad capable of "causing plenty of trouble." Ashland, after leading through three quarters, fell before Shelbys final quarter passing attack and lost by the margin of a point after touchdown. Many of their plays, the scouts relayed to Williams, are run from single wing-back and spread formations, with an emphasis on sweeps to both sides of the line.

Defense Program

These items came in for considerable attention yesterday as Williams coached the Presidents on special defense measures to cope with the A's. That Ashland will bring an experienced squad here is seen in the eligibility records, which lists 13 of the team members as seniors. Last year Harding had trouble getting an 18-9 decision over Ashland and the competition is expected to be considerable tougher when the teams square off again.

Marion St. Mary gridders yesterday worked on offensive and defensive blocking for punts and today were to get a short scrimmage session. Coach Berens also hopes to iron out rough spots in the pass offense. Frank Terzo, triple-threat back is laid up with a severe cold and is not expected to play at Forest. His understudy, Bob McGinnis, will take over the task of heaving aerials. Bob has filled Terzo's slot in practice this week and the added pass workouts have been staged to give him every chance to be primed for Forest. Tim Kelly and Ray Murphy, the pair of linemen who suffered minor injuries in last week's battle at Crestline, returned to the lineup yesterday.

The game will start at Forest at 3 p. m. and members of the team will leave Marion by bus at 1 p. m. A squad of 20 will take the trip.

Mt. Gilead At Upper

At Upper Sandusky, followers of the Rams' today were cheered by the report that Dick Schoenberger, backfield star, is expected to return to the line-up when Upper Sandusky entertains Mt. Gilead, Friday afternoon. Another squad member, Craig Bowman, who suffered a fractured wrist at Bucyrus last week will probably be out for the season.

The Rams are seeking their third win, having previously defeated Mt. Cory, 13-0, and Bellevue, 7-6, while losing to Bucyrus, 28-0. Mt. Gilead has shown good defensive play in three games but bowed to Crestline and Carey before winning, 18-7, against Butler last Friday.

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

BOUDREAU TUNES IN ON SERIES FROM BED

Indian Worries More Over Game Than Appendix.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2 — Lou Boudreau, the Cleveland Indians' phenomenal shortstop, packed a troublesome appendix and a radio off to a hospital today—to have the first cut out and the other "cut in" on the World Series.

Lou lay abed for a rest before the appendenctomy to be performed tomorrow.

He apparently was concerned more with the Series than with the operation saying: "I hope the championship will stay in the American league."

The Tribesman, who not only plugged a leaky infield effectively in his first full season with Cleveland but batted an impressive .296 and poled in 101 runs to lead the club, had been "bothered off and on the whole season" by his appendix.

"It never kept me out of any games because Trainer Lefty Weisman watched my condition carefully," Bourdeau explained.

Cincy May Have Prize Rookie of Baseball Draft

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2—The Cincinnati Reds saved $17,500 and may have gotten the prize plum in the annual baseball draft last night.

They chose Mike Christoff, outfielder for Oakland in the Pacific Coast league, for whom they once offered $25,000 and two players. The bid was turned down when Mike was leading his loop in home runs early in the season. He went into a slump but wound up hitting better than .300, so he still may be a good buy at $7,500.

Twelve other minor leaguers were brought up through the draft, costing the major teams $7,500 if they came from Double-A clubs and $6,000 if from Class A or A-1.

Outfielder Murray Howell of Baltimore in the International went to the Cleveland Indians.

Players from Kenton and Mt. Gilead Help Ohio Northern Grid Campaign

NELSON LAWLESS-QUARTERBACK

GEORGE KEEL-QUARTERBACK
JUNIOR BRAY-HALFBACK

George Keel, stellar quarterback from Kenton, and Francis Kubbs, Mt. Gilead halfback, are among the kingpins in the 1940 football squad of Coach Harris Lamb at Ohio Northern university. With the smallest squad in years, Coach Lamb finds himself relying largely on Keel, All-Ohio conference quarterback of 1939, Kubbs, Nelson Lawless of Martins Ferry, Junior Bray of Toronto and Tom Pierson of Copley.

Kubbs and Lawless, both sophomores, were initiated into inter-collegiate football at Findlay last Friday night when the Ada Polar Bears lost, 14-12. Northern will seek to stop Denison's "Big Red" eleven at Granville this Friday night.

Tigers May Fear "Strike-out" Billy Myers Before World Series Ends, Scribe Predicts

By JOHN FRYE
Associated Press Sports Writer

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2—This is just to bet that before the next four to seven games are gone, the Detroit Tigers are going to wish that the Cincinnati Reds' "All-American Strike-out" was on their side.

The fellow who is wearing that affectionate tag is Billy Myers, the shortstop who ended the season with a resounding batting average of .201. He has been known to strike out five straight times over two games this year and the fans say that when he gets a hit it's time to take the pitcher out.

It May Happen

That is just what may happen. Bobo Newson or Schoolboy Rowe is just likely to feed Billy Myers the ball that means a very important hit and Billy is going to get it.

Lee Allen, unofficial statistician for the Reds, points out that Billy is the first man in the history of the ball club to be a regular shortstop for six years.

That is to say, Billy has been in there a long time as shortstops go around here and knows what to do with a double-play ball—and is always due for a hit.

Manager Bill McKechnie keeps him there, when he could pick up some bandy-leg who hit .450 in the corn fritter league for the train fare, because he knows Billy's one of the best shortstops between here and heaven. McKechnie knows that Bill Myers strikes out a lot, but he also knows that Bill Myers can hit a homer with the bases loaded, as he has done, or whistle a double down the left field line with two out in the ninth an the tying and winning runs on base, as he also has done.

Nothing New To Reds

As far as that goes, he points out further, light-hitting shortstops are nothing new to Cincinnati. The last slugger the Reds had in there was Joe Tinker, who hit .317 in 1913 and the nearest approach to a .300 hitter since then was Gordon Slade, who had .285 in 1934. The year before Otto Bluege got 68 hits for .170 or so.

The whole point is that although Billy Myers went 85 points under his 1930 average this year, he's still an important cog in the Red machine or somebody else would be playing shortstop and batting eighth in the lineup.

And if McKechnie still likes him, that's enough.

Reds Win Favor Despite Weakness

By The Associated Press

The Reds went into the series today badly crippled, and the professionals were laying modest odds against their chances. Yet they still drew a majority vote among the men who write baseball and who follow it all season. President Ford Frick of the National league said: "This is the first time I haven't even been nervous."

It was a strange situation, all right. The Detroit lineup was intact, with Hank Greenberg and Rudy York glowing with health and ready to sock their home runs. Greenberg, to be doubly cautious, even spent a voluntary half-hour late yesterday shagging flies in Crosley field. There wasn't an ache or pain in the Detroit camp.

Lombardi Out

The Reds, on the other hand, had realize the worst. Ernie Lombardi their big, long-hitting catcher, still was limping painfully on his sprained ankle, and it looked as if he might not get in the series at all. With Lombardi out, the Reds had one real hitter left-first baseman Frank McCormick.

The Reds also were shy the services of their steady second baseman, Lonnie Frey, whose big toe was smashed by a lethal weapon (a water cooler lid) only a few days ago. Frey was hurting at every step yesterday, even after the toe of his shoe had been cut away, so it looked doubtful that Manager Bill McKechnie would take a chance on him.

All of which meant that the Reds entered the series, seriously weakened. Their replacement for Lombardi was Jimmy Wilson, a veteran backstop who hasn't played regularly for over two years.

To take Frey's place at second they had Eddie Joost. He can field fully as well as Frey, but his hitting leaves much to be desired.

All of which made it the more remarkable that the Reds were favored by the experts. They had no real sluggers in their line-up, yet they were being picked right and left to lick a team that had Hank Greenberg.

Reason Is Pitching

The reason for this, of course, was the potency of Cincinnati's pitching staff.

The Reds had Derringer, Bucky Walters, Junior Thompson and Jim Turner to throw at the Tigers in succession. They are a handful of pitchers, each of them capable of stopping a team dead when he is right.

The Tigers had Newsom, a tired pitcher, for today, and then they had Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges. They hoped Newsen could win today and perhaps pitch another game. They had no hope that Rowe could do more than toss his one game tomorrow and that Bridges could fling his contest on Friday in Detroit. Then they didn't know what they would do for a fourth pitcher.

That, doubtless, was why a majority of the pickers had settled on the crippled Reds.

SERIES NOTES

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2—Well, the World Series is here and if you think nobody takes the efforts of the Cincinnati Reds and Detroit Tigers seriously, try to get into the ball park today.

It costs an even dollar to rent squatting room at the windows of the factory across from the field and you have to supply your own binoculars.

Friends of Johnny Vander Meer, the Reds' southpaw fireballer who pitched two straight no-hitters in 1938, disclosed today that he and his childhood sweetheart, Lois Stewart of Scranton, Pa., would be married three weeks or so after the Series.

One of the sights in the World Series press headquarters downtown made everybody feel young again. It was Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators and Jim O'Leary, veteran, white-haired Boston baseball writer, marching in under big campaign hats. They looked as if they'd be going on forever.

Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics, too.

Practically all the surviving members of the Reds world champion team of 1919 are in town for a "good old days" meeting. Slim Sallee, the "sheriff of Higginsport;" Heinie Groh, of the bottle bat; Larry Kopf, the real estate man; Rube Bressler, the restaurateur; Eddie Roush, and Pat Duncan headed the arrivals. Jimmy Ring, Earl Neale, Morris Rath, and Dutch Reuther sent word that they couldn't make it. Manager Pat Moran and first baseman Jake Daubert are dead.

Denton Tecumseh "Cy" Young, the great old pitcher, left his Peoli, O., farm for the show and announced that the Tigers ought to win.

SOX BEAT CUBS, 5-3

DeCorrevont 'Forgotten Ma

But It's Okay with Bill, Who Knows What Too Much Publicity Does.

By The Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 2—William John de Correvont has been all but ignored by football's drum-beaters this season and no one is more pleased about this than De Correvont himself.

A year ago, the tow-headed halfback was riding the crest of a tremendous publicity wave, carrying the Northwestern eleven along with him to mythical heights. You know the result. Charitably speaking, Northwestern and Sophomore De Correvont were something less than sensational.

Now the Wildcats are short on those bulky, seasoned linemen who studded the squad in 1939 but are long on a real battling spirit and the desire to show the "experts" who listed them below at least four other Big Ten elevens.

De Correvont appears ready at last to cut the swath in college circles that he did as a Chicago High school boy three years ago.

Two weeks ago no one seemed to know whether Bill would play much this season. On July 28 he underwent an appendectomy, but has bounced back rapidly. He now weighs 184 pounds and is ready for a full game's workout.

"I was never in as good shape as I am right now," he said yesterday. "We're all set out here this year to have some fun. The situation is much better than a year ago and I'm sure our team is ready to go. I know I am."

The Wildcats try the comeback road Saturday at Syracuse, Alma Mater of Head Coach Lynn Waldorf, who hasn't been back to the old school since he graduated in 1924.

CRESTLINE BOY STARS

Sophomore Lou Cellini of Crestline is expected to take over a first string guard berth on the Heidelberg college football team when the Student Princes visit Ashland college, Friday night, according to news reports from the school's publicity bureau. Cellini is among a trio of sophomores who sent veteran linemen back to the second string by their performances as substitutes in last week's encounter.

Before the Game

Several hours before game time the right field bleachers were filled, presaging a capacity crowd of about 33,000 Holders of reserved seats were a bit slow arriving thereby missing Comedian Al Schacht s baton-swinging act as he led the band for the bleacherites

"Deacon Bill McKechnie, Redleg skipper, remained reticent about naming his starting hurler for the inaugural, but everyone expected Paul Derringer to get the call Louis (Buck) Newsom definitely was the Detroit choice

Newsom, who won 14 in one stretch during the pennant drive, wound up the season with a record of 21 victories and five defeats, while Derringer finished with 20 wins and a dozen losses

Only a few auxiliary seats were added for the series, tucked in between the grand stand and the foul lines far out by the fence The press box was extended around the top of the grand stand

The playing field, manicured to the nth degree, appeared lightning fast

Bleacherites who stood in line all night had their long vigil for nothing, for several vacant spots were dotted through the general admission sectors They were filling rapidly, however, two hours before game time

Cincinnati's National league champs were the first to appear on the field A wild yell from the bleachers greeted the home club as it streamed from the dugout to start batting practice shortly before noon, with Elmer Riddle tossing to the hitters

Ernie Lombardi, the Reds' injured catcher, hobbled into the outfield to shag' flies, but he was not expected to get into the game Fans began filtering into the reserved seats while the Reds worked out

The Tigers appeared at noon, and the photographers put them through the same posing process to which they had subjected the Reds

Floyd Giebell, rookie pitcher who beat Cleveland 2 to 0 last Friday to clinch the pennant for the Tigers, took the hill for the Detroit batting practice Giebell, ineligible for series play, was allowed to don a uniform and sit on the Tiger bench only through special permission of McKechnie, pilot of the Reds

WAR DEPT. OFFICER PRAISES U. S. PRESS

Voices Opposition to Censorship in Fair Speech.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The war department's opposition to censorship was voiced today by Lieut. Col Stanley J Grogan of the general staff press section

The army, Colonel Grogan declared, thinks that censorship is very often worse than that which it attempts to prevent "

He praised American newspapers for a magnificent service in the national defense effort,' and said that military officials believed the press would cooperate voluntarily with authorities in such a way 'as to make censorship unnecessary"

In a speech prepared for the Overseas Press club at the World's fair, Colonel Grogan explained the army's press relations policy and mentioned two topics which, he emphasized, were still in the realm of "conjecture"

One was whether the war department might use some opinion polling service to measure public reaction to its operations

The other was whether the present army press organization 'in a time of greater peril' might become part of a large governmental public relations agency like the Creel committee on public information in the World war

STOCKS SHOW LITTLE PUSH

Market Turns Irregular; Few Issues Maintain Market Firmness.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Under the directionless influence of testing orders, the stock market turned irregular today.

Firmness was shown by such shares as Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, American Can, General Steel Castings preferred, Electric Boat, Douglas and American Smelting.

Bond and commodity trends were mixed. The London market closed steady despite frequent air raid interruptions which limited trading.

Wall Street operators were obviously awaiting European war developments.

The magazine Iron Age, commenting on the position of steel companies, said: "In production, shipments and aggregate tonnage of bookings the fourth quarter may be one of the most active periods the steel industry has ever experienced, notwithstanding the fact that the bulk of the national defense requirements probably will come at a later time."

WHEAT PRICES FALL ON PROFIT TAKING

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 — Wheat prices backed down almost a cent a bushel today as a result of selling by dealers accepting profits.

The urge to take profits ranging from fractions up to 5 or 7 cents a bushel accumulated over the past month was the dominating trade factor although sluggish flour business and a sharp decline of wheat at Buenos Aires attracted attention. Crop experts raised their estimates of domestic spring wheat production slightly but the indicated harvest still was below the latest government forecast.

Wheat closed ⅝-¾ lower than yesterday, Dec. 81⅞-82, May 81½-⅝; corn unchanged to ⅜ off, Dec. 58, May 58⅛; oats ⅛ higher.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Foe of Pellagra

When the vitamins came to the attention of the medical profession, it was immediately recognized that there were many well known diseases that had been long recognized as due to nutritional deficiencies. One of these was scurvy: it was known that it could be prevented in men required to live for a long time on preserved food, by adding fresh lemon or lime juice to the daily fare. Another was the tropical disease, beri-beri, that Eijkman proved, in 1889, to be preventable by using whole rice instead of milled rice.

One disease everyone recognized as a deficiency disease par excellence was called pellagra. It consisted in a scruffiness of the skin, especially of the exposed parts—hands and neck. There was a sore, scruffy eruption on the neck called the "Casal collar," after the man who first described it. There was a sore tongue, and fissures around the mouth, as well as general debility and diarrhoea and other disturbances of digestion.

All over the world it was found among people who lived on artificially preserved foods. Typically, in the United States it was found in remote districts of the south—among the cabin folk of mountains or swamps—those who lived on coffee and canned beans, and salt pork, all through the winter. To see one of these folk sitting out in the early spring sunshine, with his listless expression and scruffy red hands and face, you just knew he had had a hard bout with the winter supply of corn pone and molasses and bacon.

Pellagra in fully developed form must be due to the absence in the diet of a number of food factors. A substance called nicotinic acid, which is part of Vitamin B, and can be isolated from plants will relieve the symptoms of pellagra, but used alone as an addition to a deficient diet it will not prevent it. Chemically it is not the same as riboflavin.

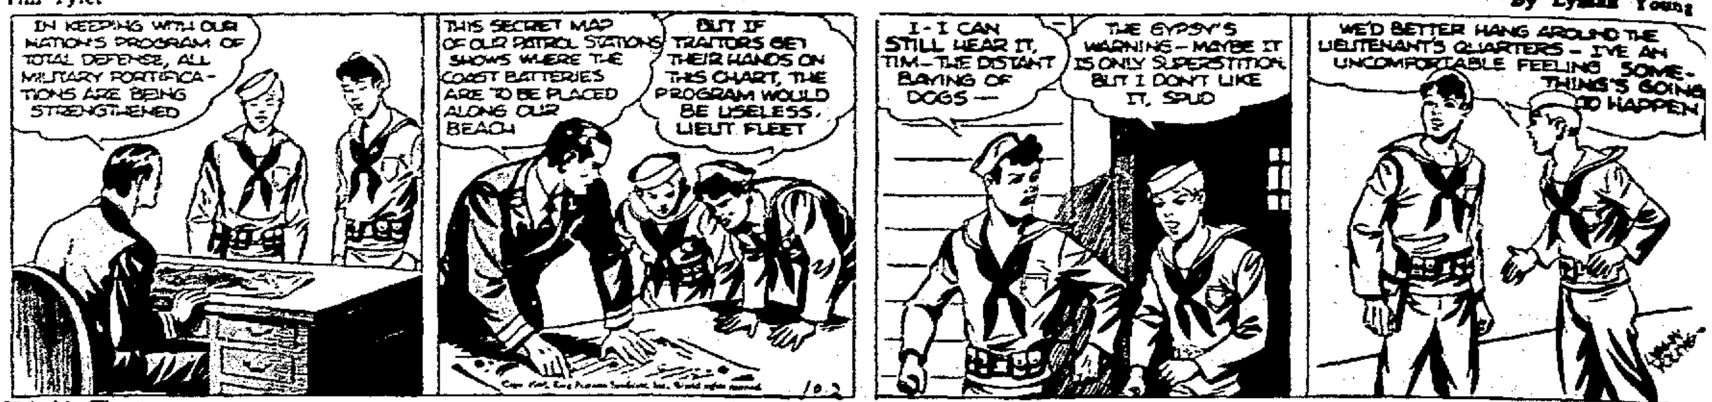
Tim Tyler By Lyman Young



IN KEEPING WITH OUR NATION'S PROGRAM OF TOTAL DEFENSE, ALL MILITARY FORTIFICATIONS ARE BEING STRENGTHENED
THIS SECRET MAP OF OUR PATROL STATIONS SHOWS WHERE THE COAST BATTERIES ARE TO BE PLACED ALONG OUR BEACH
BUT IF TRAITORS GET THEIR HANDS ON THIS CHART, THE PROGRAM WOULD BE USELESS, LIEUT. FLEET
I-I CAN STILL HEAR IT, TIM—THE DISTANT BAYING OF DOGS—
THE GYPSY'S WARNING—MAYBE IT IS ONLY SUPERSTITION, BUT I DON'T LIKE IT, SPUD
WE'D BETTER HANG AROUND THE LIEUTENANT'S QUARTERS—I'VE AN UNCOMFORTABLE FEELING SOMETHING'S GOING TO HAPPEN

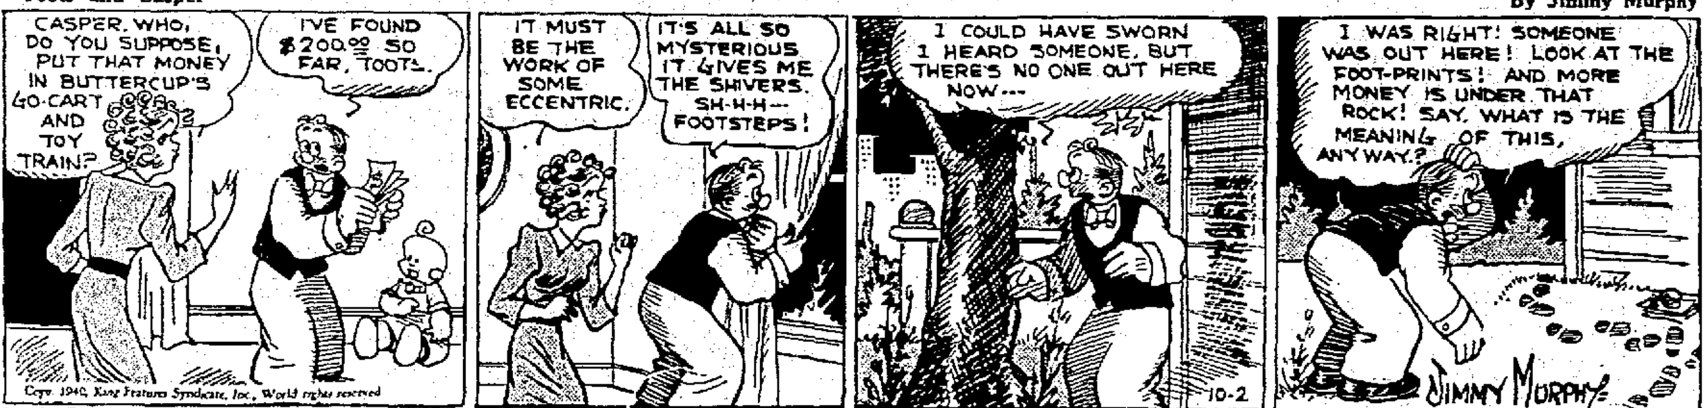
Toots and Casper By Jimmy Murphy



CASPER, WHO, DO YOU SUPPOSE, PUT THAT MONEY IN BUTTERCUP'S GO-CART AND TOY TRAIN?
I'VE FOUND $200.00 SO FAR, TOOTS.
IT MUST BE THE WORK OF SOME ECCENTRIC.
IT'S ALL SO MYSTERIOUS. IT GIVES ME THE SHIVERS. SH-H-H— FOOTSTEPS!
I COULD HAVE SWORN I HEARD SOMEONE, BUT THERE'S NO ONE OUT HERE NOW—
I WAS RIGHT! SOMEONE WAS OUT HERE! LOOK AT THE FOOT-PRINTS! AND MORE MONEY IS UNDER THAT ROCK! SAY, WHAT IS THE MEANING OF THIS, ANYWAY?

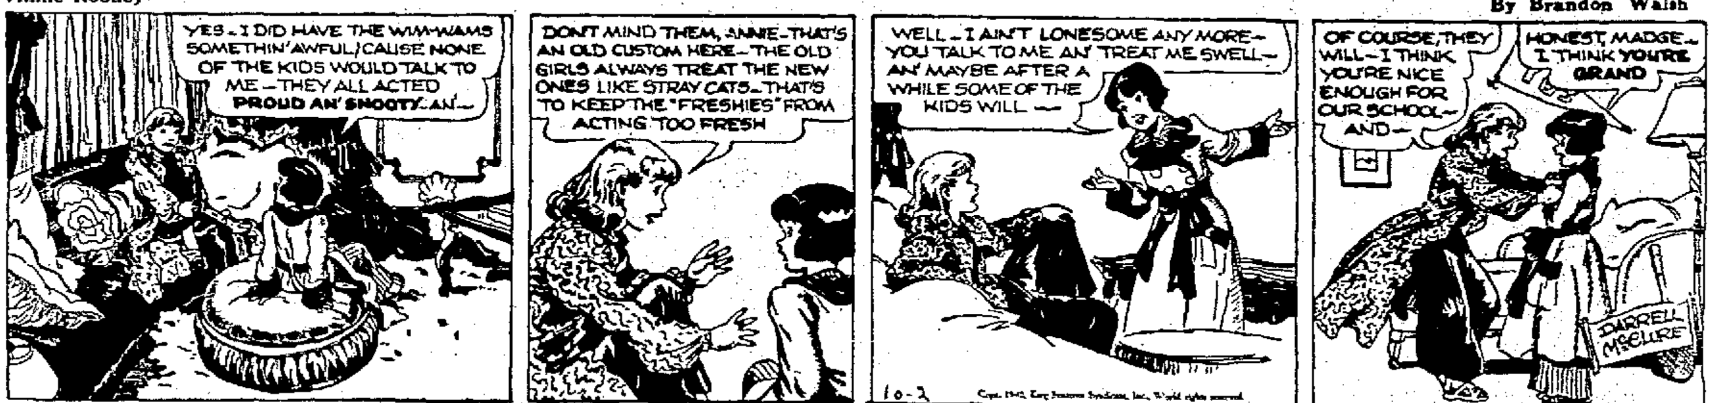
Annie Rooney By Brandon Walsh



YES—I DID HAVE THE WIM-WAMS SOMETHIN' AWFUL/CAUSE NONE OF THE KIDS WOULD TALK TO ME—THEY ALL ACTED PROUD AN' SNOOTY—AN'—
DON'T MIND THEM, ANNIE—THAT'S AN OLD CUSTOM HERE—THE OLD GIRLS ALWAYS TREAT THE NEW ONES LIKE STRAY CATS—THAT'S TO KEEP THE "FRESHIES" FROM ACTING TOO FRESH
WELL—I AIN'T LONESOME ANY MORE—YOU TALK TO ME AN' TREAT ME SWELL—AN' MAYBE AFTER A WHILE SOME OF THE KIDS WILL—
OF COURSE, THEY WILL—I THINK YOU'RE NICE ENOUGH FOR OUR SCHOOL—AND—
HONEST, MADGE—I THINK YOU'RE GRAND

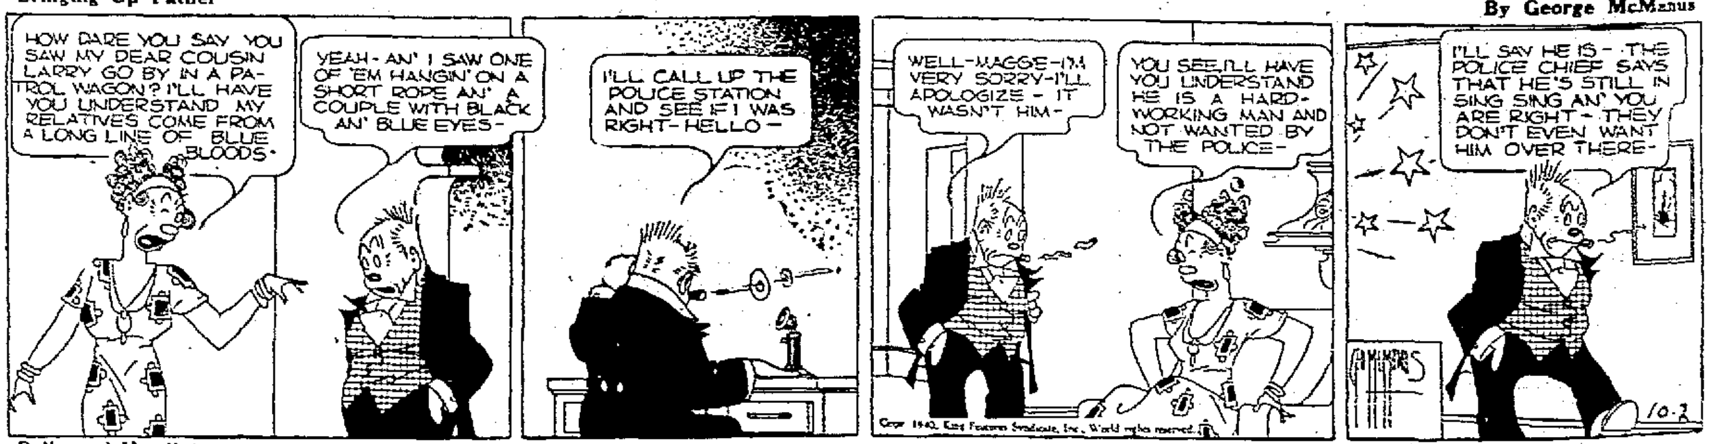
Bringing Up Father By George McManus



HOW DARE YOU SAY YOU SAW MY DEAR COUSIN LARRY GO BY IN A PATROL WAGON? I'LL HAVE YOU UNDERSTAND MY RELATIVES COME FROM A LONG LINE OF BLUE BLOODS.
YEAH—AN' I SAW ONE OF 'EM HANGIN' ON A SHORT ROPE AN' A COUPLE WITH BLACK AN' BLUE EYES—
I'LL CALL UP THE POLICE STATION AND SEE IF I WAS RIGHT—HELLO—
WELL—MAGGIE—I'M VERY SORRY—I'LL APOLOGIZE—IT WASN'T HIM—
YOU SEE, I'LL HAVE YOU UNDERSTAND HE IS A HARD-WORKING MAN AND NOT WANTED BY THE POLICE—
I'LL SAY HE IS—THE POLICE CHIEF SAYS THAT HE'S STILL IN SING SING AN' YOU ARE RIGHT—THEY DON'T EVEN WANT HIM OVER THERE—
